AN EASY VICTORY.

MERRILL HIGH SCHOOL NOT IN IT

No Time During the Game That the Home Team Was in Any Danger of Losing.

Grand Rapids won another signal victory on Saturday when they met the Merrill high school team in this city at football. The visitors were not in it at any stage of the game and it was so easy for Grand Rapids that at times the spectators lost interest and the home boys made some very slack plays.

The game was called shortly after 2 o'clock. Grand Rapids kicked off. Merrill lost the ball immediately on a fumble and Grand Rapids steadily advanced it to the goal until Brennan was pushed through the line for a touchdown. Kelly kicked the goal.

Merrill kicked off. Grand Rapids caught the ball and made a fair advance. The visitors were unable to hold our boys and there was a steady advance until the pigskin was again carried over the goal line by Brennan. Kelly again kicked goal.

It was apparent to all by this time that Merrill was no match for the Grand Rapids team, as the visitors had not gained the ball once on downs, and in nearly every instance the Grand Rapids team made more than the required five yards on the first down.

Merrill again kicked off to Grand Rapids. Grand Rapids again advanced the ball steadily to the Merrill thirty yard line when they were set back five yards on a foul. The play had just got fairly started again when the half ended with the ball at Merrill's twenty yard line.

The half ended with the score 12 to 0 in favor of Grand Rapids. At the beginning of the second half Merrill again kicked off and it was the same thing over again. Grand Rapids steadily advanced with good gains in nearly every scrimmage until Murgatroy went over the goal line with the ball neatly tucked under his arm.

Merrill again kicked off and Grand Rapids took the ball and made a steady advance until they reached the goal line when they lost the ball on downs. The ball now lay less than a foot from Merrill's goal and there was only a few minutes left to play.

Merrill took the ball and made a good run around Grand Rapids' left end, carrying it to their 40 yard line. Here their man was downed and immediately afterward time was called, ending the game. This last play was the only advance made by Merrill that amounted to anything, but they seemed to have taken new vigor, and had there been more time they might have done something to redeem themselves. Score 17 to 0.

Our boys showed up heavier than the Merrill team, but had they been of the same weight the playing of Grand Rapids would have won them the game. The contest was somewhat of a disappointment to many of the spectators, as they had hoped for a close and hotly contested game.

Three years ago Merrill had a first class high school team, and it was hoped that they would put up a good game this year.

Following is the lineup of the two teams:

An Expensive Walk.

The jury in the case of Anna Lyon against the city of Grand Rapids brought in a verdict in favor of the plaintiff on Thursday evening awarding her damages to the extent of $4,000. The case occupied three days in the trial and was heard by quite an audience.

Mrs. Lyons was injured on a defective sidewalk one day last spring in such a manner that she was confined to her bed for some time and she placed her damages at $5,000, but it was not supposed that the jury would grant her as heavy damages as they did. Four thousand dollars would build quite a stretch of sidewalk, and it would probably be cheaper to keep the walks in repair than to take any chances.

High School Notes.

The Junior class had their first class meeting of the year Monday night. The following officers were elected: President, Kenneth Kelley; vice president, Emma Dolan; secretary and treasurer, Rosa Wiperman; censor, Clay Lambertson.

Last week all classes had their regular examinations for the first semi-term. The Seniors were not examined in Composition.

Mr. Yonker read a chapter from Charles Dudley Warner's "Being a Boy" yesterday morning for opening exercises.

At the football game Saturday Merrill was beaten by our boys. The score was 17 to 0.

Two new pupils are enrolled this week, Joe Daniels and Grover Stout of Babcock.

Chicken Pie Social.

There will be a chicken pie social at G. A. R. hall Thursday evening, Oct. 16th, from 5 to 8 o'clock p. m., under the auspices of the east side Ladies' Aid society of the Congregational church. Everybody is most cordially invited. Supper 25c.

Our Candidate for Congress.

The democrats of this section of the country have probably never put up a man for congress who was so universally endorsed by the people at large as Burt Williams of Ashland. Every class of people seems to be friendly toward him and that without solicitation on his part. Mr. Williams is not a millionaire and has used no money to bring the general public to his way of thinking but republicans and democrats alike have come out voluntarily and spoken a good word for him.

The Wausau Central Wisconsin, one of the leading republican papers in this district, in mentioning his nomination, says: "That this northern country holds out inducements to the young man, not to be thought of in the older communities is forcibly demonstrated in the case of Burt Williams, who recently received the democratic nomination for the office of congressman, and who is mayor of Ashland. This preferment was not due to influential relatives or the liberal use of money, for Williams is a newspaper man, and so far as this world's goods go is in about the same class as the rest of us. The new north is quick to recognize worth and ability and the young man who comes here with a determination to climb the ladder, who shows that he is in earnest, who is loyal to his friends, who is possessed of ability, need not have any fear. These are the requisites and these are the things that Williams possesses in a liberal degree."

At a meeting of the Ashland Central Council of the American Federation of labor held in Ashland recently the following resolutions were adopted: "Be it resolved that we, the members of Central Labor Council, representing organized labor of the city of Ashland, hereby pledge our earnest support to the candidacy of Burt Williams, for congress from this district. As a fellow citizen of ours he has in every way given his support in behalf of union labor and has always been the true friend of the laboring men in Ashland. He is eminently a true representative of the masses of the people and in the various contests in this city against corporate greed his efforts have invariably been enlisted in upholding the rights of the people. We feel that as congressman, his influence will be cast for legislation calculated to benefit the common people and particularly to advance the cause of union labor and we hope that laboring men all over the district will join in securing his election."

The members of the Central Labor Council comprises delegates from the various unions of the city of Ashland, including the tailors union, cigar makers union, longshoremen union, ore trimmers union, printers union, teamsters union, mill mens union, sailors union and the delegates of these unions were republicans, democrats and social democrats, indicating the esteem in which Mr. Williams is held by the people right at his home where he is known best.

The Antigo News Items, in speaking of Mr. Williams' candidacy, says: "From the present indications Burt Williams will make Congressman Brown hostile to get elected this year. A large number of republicans in this vicinity have announced their intention to vote for Williams, believing him to be nearer the common people than the millionaire banker and lumberman Webb Brown."

BANK ROBBERS HERE

PORTAGE CO. SHERIFF ON TRAIL

Almond Bank Robbers Thought to Have Been in This City Last Week Tuesday.

On Tuesday evening the sheriff of Portage county and a Pinkerton detective were in the city looking for the men who broke open the bank at Almond and rifled one of the safes of the contents, carrying away with them about $150.

The sheriff of Portage county is Charles Gaylord, and he stated that there were three men in the party of bank robbers, one of them being a short, good looking man with a dark mustache and the other two tall men with smooth faces. The men stole a horse and buggy when they made their escape over a week ago, and although the officers have been hunting since then, nothing has been heard of either the men or the rig, the whole outfit seeming to have disappeared from the face of the earth.

When a description of the men was given to Landlord Crotteau he remembered of three men entering his hotel one night last week, so far as he can remember on Tuesday evening, but the house being full, he could not give them lodging and they went somewhere else. As they were in the house only a few minutes Mr. Crotteau did not get their description very fully fixed in his mind, but so far as he could remember it tallied with that given by the sheriff.

It begins to look as if there was not much hope of capturing the men if they have any money to travel with, as they have a week start and could be several thousand miles distant should they care to put this distance between them and their pursuers.

A Small Blaze.—Fire was discovered in the G. A. R. hall this noon and an alarm soon brought out the fire department. The blaze was found to be in the basement of the building and two lines of hose were quickly attached to the hydrant near by and in a few minutes the portion under the building had been flooded and every vestige of fire extinguished.

It was found on examination that the fire originated just above the furnace where the hot air pipes come very close to the joist, and these had been burned a trifle as was also the floor in the hall about the register. The damage is only nominal and can be repaired for a few dollars. It was a sort of a practical test of the waterworks, however, and showed that a stream could be got in this manner much quicker than by the use of the engine, and if necessary several more streams could have been secured in short order.

Divor at Work.—A diver was brought here on Saturday and the pipe line that crosses the river was gone over by him for the purpose of discovering if possible where the leaks were that had been giving the trouble on this stretch of line. An air pressure of forty pounds to the square inch was put into the pipes, but no leak could be discovered in this manner. Water pressure was applied up to 150 pounds but still the leaks were not apparent. The work done on the pipe helped it somewhat, however, and Engineer Pfeiffer feels confident that it will fill the requirements. The rest of the pipe line about the city is now so tight that it more than fills the bill, the leakage being less than that allowed on a line of this length.

May Not Have Been Rabies.—Nothing having been heard from the dog's head that was sent to Madison for the purpose of discovering what ailed the animal, it had become a question in the minds of those interested here whether the dog was affected with hydrophobia at all or not. In testing for this disease a number of rabbits are inoculated and if rabies develop there is no question but what the dog was similarly affected, but if nothing out of the ordinary occurs it is concluded that the dog was affected with something else. As plenty of time has elapsed and nothing has been heard from the matter it has been about concluded that it might have been some other ailment.

A Small Meeting.—Last Saturday evening a socialist held forth at the G. A. R. hall and explained to the few that assembled the beauties of socialism. Some very alluring pictures can be drawn of the conditions of society under socialistic reign, but like many other things they might not prove so beautiful viewed at closer range. It is easy to picture an ideal state of existence under almost any government, but the schemes are hard to work in practice for to reason that human beings seem to have a certain amount of brute nature in their make up, and no amount of theory will take it out of them.

Potatoes May Boom.—During a talk with an old potato man on Saturday that gentleman stated that his opinion was that potatoes were going to be much better in price, and that before long. Potatoes that are bought here were being shipped to Detroit, which is located in a country that generally produces a great surplus of the tubers, which would indicate a very short crop over there. He stated also that if he had a place for storing he would not be afraid to invest in a few thousand bushels and take a chance of their going up later in the season.

Might Have Been Serious.—Priscilla, the little daughter of Mrs. L. Akey, swallowed a moth ball while her mother was employed in making some purchases in Spafford's store on Thursday. The accident was discovered at once and the services of a physician employed and the little girl suffered no ill effects. Just what the effect of moth balls would be on the human system cannot be stated, but it would not seem as if they would prove very wholesome for a steady diet, and the little girl was lucky to escape so easily.

A Fine Turnout.—O. Boyer, proprietor of the Riverside steam laundry, received a new delivery wagon this week which is a beauty and would be an ornament to any business. The wagon is a covered rig with plate glass windows on all sides and finished in the highest style of art. The outfit was manufactured by the O. Arm-leader company of Cincinnati, who make a specialty of this sort of thing and cost Mr. Boyer something like two hundred dollars delivered.

Awarded $1,000.—The jury in the case of Lydia Duncan vs. the City of Grand Rapids brought in a verdict for the plaintiff on Monday for the sum of $1,000. The plaintiff was injured on a defective walk some time ago, injuring her hip, straining her back, etc., from which she suffered great pain and inconvenience, and for which she claimed damages to the extent of $5,000. After hearing all the evidence the jury decided that about one thousand would cover the case and made their decision accordingly.

A Sad Case.—The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Young died last Wednesday morning as the result of convulsions, the little one being found dead in the bed that morning. A physician was summoned, but he had been proenored too late to render any aid. Mrs. Young, who had been in the hospital receiving treatment, came home the same day that her baby died, and as her first question was for her little one, she was naturally greatly shocked to hear of its death.

Was Found Dead.—John G. Faulds of the Grantsburg Journal office, who had been missing for some time past, was found dead in the woods on Saturday by an Indian. Faulds formerly lived in this city and was well known here, being employed in newspaper work. He had gone into the woods some time before and it is supposed that his reason forsook him and that he wandered about until he starved to death.

New Football Team.—Some of the boys about town have organized a football team in this city and will begin practice at once. They have their first game a week from next Sunday at Nekoosa when they will play the team of that city. There is a lot of good material here and the boys should be able to get up a strong team. The lineup has not been perfected as yet, but will be given later.

A New Dynamo.—The electric light plant of the Electric and Water company received their new dynamo during the past week and the large generator has been placed in position and will hereafter be used to furnish the power and light for the city. Heretofore the power has been furnished by two dynamos, but the new one will take the place of both of these, being of 500 horse power.

Dogs Caught Running.—Eternal vigilance is the price of success in keeping a dog nowadays. Last week George Atkins had to pay a fine of $5 on account of his dog having escaped from confinement and later A. P. Hirzy and E. MacKinnon were held up for the same amount, their dogs having gotten away for a few minutes and being seen by the dog police.

Drove Too Fast.—Conrad Kouash of Milladore was arrested by Officer Garthee on Saturday for driving over the bridge at a faster rate of speed than the law on the subject allows. He paid a fine of five dollars and costs when taken before Justice Crotteau, amounting in all to $8.32, and departed on his way a sadder and poorer man.

Bowling Season Opens.—Jacob Lutz will open his bowling alley tomorrow evening. He has the place thoroughly renovated and in good shape for the entertainment of those who enjoy this popular sport, and as usual on such occasions there will no doubt be a good crowd in attendance.

Still at It.—County Clerk Renne has issued one thousand hunting licenses up to date, and the demand still remains firm, with a slightly downward tendency to the market. Unless the signs fail he will issue a total of fifteen hundred licenses this year.

Some Cold Weather.—Sunday and Monday were two wet and disagreeable days, and were followed on Monday night by a heavy frost, quite thick ice being formed in all exposed places.

Pyne-Blumebosse.

This afternoon at two o'clock occurred the marriage of Roland S. Payne to Miss Emma Binnebose. The ceremony occurred at the Lutheran church, Rev. Baum officiating. Scott and Lee Payne attended the groom and Misses Ida Binnebose and Lydia Dixon were the bridesmaids.

Both of the contracting parties are residents of the south side, where Mr. Payne is a faithful employee in the paper mill, being a machine tender, and they are well and most favorably known to a large circle of warm friends.

After the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride where the invited friends assembled and joined in wishing the young couple Godspeed on their journey through life. The Tribune extends congratulations.

Right to the Point!

We agree with you that the daily news of the world's doings makes more interesting reading than the plain unvarnished facts of an advertisement, but are the reporters' tales so profitable and interesting, yes, attractive, naturally; how better can we offset your prejudice than by making the daily store news brief, by avoiding meaningless trade terms and getting "right to the point." You who do not know the clothing business from the loom to the finished garment must depend upon the reputation of the store from which you buy. Confidence must exist between buyer and seller and too, there must be a strong foundation for that confidence. Enough--let 10 years of fair and upright business decide you where to buy.

That Coal Strike.

The coal strike is still on notwithstanding the strenuous efforts of the president and the rest of them. The capitalists now tell us that the payment of higher wages to the miners would mean the making of coal so high that it would drive the commercial industries out of the country. They say that this is the reason that England is so rapidly losing her prestige as a manufacturing country, because the miners banded themselves together and raised wages to such an extent that it brought the price of coal up so that it cannot be used by the factories and they are all moving over here. They have told us heretofore that the growth of our manufacturing was entirely due to the protective tariff, but of course they may have found out that they are mistaken in the matter. It is also queer that if the high wages makes coal so high in the old country it is necessary to have a protective tariff on coal to keep it from being shipped to this country. Seems as if there was something about this matter that has not been explained as yet, but they may think out a solution before they get through with it.

A Communication.

—Mr. Editor—Allow me to speak a few words of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I suffered for three years with the bronchitis and could not sleep at nights. I tried several doctors and various patent medicines, but could get nothing to give me any relief until my wife got a bottle of this valuable medicine, which has completely relieved me. —W. S. Brock-Bangnell, Mo. This remedy is for sale by Johnson & Hill Co. and Wood County Drug Co.

—When wiring your house, for electric lights choose the man who is the most skilled in that particular line. The requirements of an inside wireman are large, as he must be somewhat of a carpenter and know to a large extent how buildings are constructed, must be a "handy man," must be able to use soldering tools and know how to do a neat and clean job. For neatness and workmanship get G. M. Huntington. Telephone 251.

Husband and Wife Disagree.

Husband and wife often disagree about some matter that concerns each other and frequently the husband finds that his wife's judgment is the best, the case of Mr. John W. Young of Lincoln, Ill., is however an exception, he says: "My wife and I both had a severe cold and we decided to get some kind of medicine. I bought for myself a bottle of Hart's Honey and Horehound and taking it as directed was well in a short time. She wanted another kind and with the result that she still has a bad cough. I advised her to take Hart's Honey and Horehound and think she will have to do so if she gets well this winter." Sold by Sam Church druggist.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy Saved His Boy's Life.

"I believe I saved my nine year old boy's life this winter with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says A. M. Hope, Rio Creek, Wis. "He was so choked up with the croup that he could not speak. I gave it to him freely until he vomited and in a short time he was all right." For sale by Johnson & Hill Co. and Wood County Drug Co.

Stricken With Paralysis

Henderson Grinnett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured.—Geo. R. McDonald, Man, Logan county, W. Va. Several other remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. For sale by Johnson & Hill Co. and Wood County Drug Co.

For Member of Congress, Tenth Congressional District—
BURT WILLIAMS, of Ashland.

Two years ago when the primary election bill was before the state legislature and it looked as if it might become a law, the Tribune was strongly against the measure, and gave many reasons for the opposition. Since studying the matter more thoroughly we don't know but the measure would be a good thing—for the newspapers. Under the Australian system of balloting it costs all the way from 50 cents to a dollar and a half for each vote cast, and if the primary election measure became a law this figure would be doubled. Now the greater part of this money would go to the newspapers, and would amount to a nice little sum every time we have an election. As everybody else who can get their finger into the public treasury is engaged in bleeding the state, we can't see why it would not be a good thing for the newspapers to come in on the deal also. It would still be a lot cheaper than supporting 32 game wardens, and would be of just as much use to the public.

At the republican caucuses in Door county on Saturday the anti-LaFollette faction carried the convention bodily, not a LaFollette supporter getting a place on the ticket. This is the home of Henry Overbeck, Governor LaFollette's chief game warden and Mr. Overbeck has been the assemblyman from that district for a number of years and also held the position of chairman of the county committee. He wanted both of these jobs again, but was ousted and a strong stalwart put in both places. This does not look as if all the counties of the state were looking to Bob to save the country from going to the demerit bow wows.

One day last week while Governor LaFollette was making a speech down in the southern part of the state he was telling of how few people attend the caucuses as they exist today, expecting thereby to illustrate the usefulness of the primary election law. He asked his audience how many of them had attended all the caucuses, and after waiting for some time one lone man held up his hand. The governor smiled blandly and told the man that he must have lots of leisure time on his hands. It was subsequently discovered that the man was a game warden.

During the past two weeks the democratic nominees for county offices have been making an active campaign throughout the country and so far as they have gone they have met with the utmost encouragement and feel confident of meeting with success when the votes are counted later. The men on the democratic ticket this fall are all good men and competent to fill the offices to which they have been nominated, and should receive the support of all fair minded citizens.

From the Journal of Education, Boston, November, 1900: "Of course the credit for this successful association meeting belongs to no one person, for the whole city of Wausau had to lend a hand, but chiefly to Karl Mathie is the official credit due. Mathie is a force. Wausau is his home, here he was a school boy and from here he went to college, both West and East Harvard, and before he had fairly begun work elsewhere he was called home to run things educationally, which he is doing to the queen's taste.

"The fastest selling article I have in my store," writes druggist C. T. Smith of Davis, Ky., "Is Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, because it always cures. In my six years of sales it has never failed. I have known it to save sufferers from Throat and Lung diseases, who could get no help from doctors or any other remedy." Mothers rely on it, best physicians prescribe it, and John E. Daly guarantees satisfaction or refund price. Trial bottle free. Reg. sizes, 50c and $1.

High Ideals in Marriage.
Marriage in this day and generation is taken too lightly. The ease with which divorce is obtained leads to entering upon marriage almost in the light of an experiment. "If I don't like it, I'll get out of it." This spirit is a most deadly enemy to happiness and sanctity of home. It is throwing down every safeguard of the family. In the frequency of divorce lies the greatest menace to the morals of the nation. To women must we look to ward off this danger. It is woman who must save the nation from becoming absolutely dissolute.
Mothers should rouse themselves to see the dangers which threaten their daughters, and their sons as well. A girl marrying recklessly ruins a man's life as well as her own. Girls should not be allowed to marry in ignorance of the duties and responsibilities which they undertake.
Marriage is entered upon from various motives. One girl marries because a man is fine looking and has stylish manner; another for an establishment or a carriage and span of handsome horses. One girl may accept a man because he is a "great catch" and she will be the envy of all the other girls who would gladly have been chosen. Some girls simply marry because the opportunity comes to them. No such marriage as any of these promises much happiness. There is no reason why a girl need marry for a living or drift into marriage without thought. Mothers should instruct their daughters in those things which most lead to happiness in marriage.
Marriage without love and respect as a foundation cannot be justified. Besides love there must be unselfishness. There should be congenial taste and mutual aims in life. Perfection in any human being is not found, so forbearance, patience, forgiveness, should be cultivated. Love cannot live long without respect. A girl should thoroughly scan her motives for marriage, and if they do not come up to a high standard, if she cannot look upon it as sacred and permanent, she would better refuse it. Let the girls know that marriage is for life; for sickness, sorrow, misfortune, for motherhood, for all vicissitudes that may come and to death. If she cannot love truly enough to meet these, if she cannot reconcile herself to such outlook, she will do well to remain single.

Barbarous Symbol.
Next time you drop in on your barber to have a shave or hair cut ask him why he has a pole with white and red stripes on at his door. The chances are that he will tell you it is to let the people know there is a barber shop in the vicinity. Ask him why such a pole represents a barber shop and tell him not to talk politics or the weather to you until he has answered and you will have quite a time of it. Of course you know, but in case you don't want to bother telling him just clip this item and induce him to paste it in his hat.
"In olden times blood letting was believed in and the ancient barber was the man who made a specialty of it, as also some of them do today. The pole has nothing to do with hair cutting or shaving; it represents the blood letting end of the profession. The red stripes indicate the flow of blood, the white stripes the linen bandages used after the operation. If you succeed in cornering your barber on this question ask him not to talk so much until he acquires some information worth imparting."

After the Lovers.
A gang of swindlers has been arrested in Chicago that was operating to get rich quick by running a fake game in connection with a "matrimonial bureau". The scheme was to send out matrimonial literature, and after they had got a sucker corresponding with them to draw out all the facts concerning his income, personal estate, etc., they would then start to send him their "get rich quick" literature.
The concern had a corps of stenographers whose business it was to answer the letters of the love sick ones who were hunting for a chance to assume the fetters of married life, and these stenographers testified that they had answered some 600,000 letters to men and women from all over the country.
While the concerns were located in Chicago they did no business in that city but confined their efforts to the small towns about the country. The gullible who are looking for the chance can generally find some easy method of getting rid of their money.

The following good advice is taken from the columns of the LaCrosse Republican and Leader:
"Every citizen should believe in the town he lives in, and if he doesn't think it is a little better in most respects than neighboring towns then he should move out. When away from home, do not neglect to give those with whom you come in contact to understand that you live in a live town, populated by enterprising people, and one that is advancing instead of retrograding.
"If you can truthfully speak in commendation of the ability of your professional men, the square dealing methods of your merchants, the superiority of your schools, etc., let nothing prevent you from exercising that privilege. It will not be necessary to mention the drawbacks, if there are any. Strangers seeking a location are always greatly influenced in favor of any place where the citizens are enthusiastic in its praise.
"Unless its inhabitants appreciate the excellence and virtues of each other and will collectively spread abroad their faith in the prosperity and future greatness of their own locality, no city or town can expect to attain prominence over its rivals. When rightly utilized talk can be made effective in many directions, and this is one of them."

FETTERED BY FATE

BY ALEXANDER ROBERTSON

"Joliet's Fate," "Little Swallow," "Lottie, the Sewing Girl," "Goldmaker of Elson," "Wedded to Woe," "Diana Thorpe," "Nora's Legacy," Etc., Etc.

He had mentioned to the widow the fact that the adventurer's hand had been branded when he was sent to Siberia, so that he was now compelled to always wear a glove, but this did not seem so singular to the lady, for the fact remained that every time she had met Roger Darrel he had gloves on; so she did not think it worth while to mention this part of the story to Carol, seeing that it confirmed the detective's ideas rather than dispelled them.

Though she had only seen Roger a few times she had been wonderfully impressed by his manner and looks, and she had made up her mind that if these terrible charges against him proved true she would never trust a man again.

Poor broken-hearted Carol wandered out each day, waiting for that dread interview which was sure to come, and yet which seemed unaccountably delayed.

At the very time when these ideas were passing in review through the wearied and troubled brain of Carol Richmond, the object of her thoughts, poor Roger Darrel, was pacing his library like a caged animal, growling now and then and showing every evidence of distress and despair.

Try as he would, he found it impossible to think of Carol without allowing his mind to dwell on love, and he was nearly frantic with the continued fight he had gone through.

He had promised to be a friend to the girl he loved, and though this was easy to say yet when it came to attempting it he found he had before him the most difficult task of his life.

The detective gained in strength so rapidly that in a few days more he hoped to leave those who had stood so nobly by him, and start upon his trail of vengeance.

Though Roger Darrel had not yet made his appearance since the time of his separation from Carol, the widow knew he would soon come, and hence she was continually on the lookout for him. She had promised her child not to say anything to him, leaving the whole matter to her.

He came at last. The day was a lovely one, with the birds singing among the trees, and all nature looked beautiful.

Up the forest aisle came Roger, heading straight for the old mill. His face was pale and set, as though he had conquered in his battle, and yet none knew better than he how weak human nature was when the hour of temptation came.

The little lady saw him coming, and while she spoke to him pleasantly her eyes were watching his face. She saw the traces of anguish there, such as never rested upon the countenance of guilt, and when he had gone to seek Carol, after her directions, she gave utterance to her thoughts aloud:

"If that is the face of guilt, then my judgment of character is at fault. Place Roger Darrel before me and I should have declared him the most honorable of men, noble and generous. Yet how the man belies his looks. If all is true, then a greater villain never went un-hung. My Heaven give my dear girl the strength to do what is right, no matter what the pain may be."

She had no idea of what was in store for her while thus thinking of her child, and yet a crisis in her own affairs was rapidly approaching.

Although she could not comprehend in full what the temptation would be, yet she knew Carol must suffer, and her heart went out to her poor child, upon whom Heaven had apparently frowned so early. Laid it been possible, she would have liked so much to have been with Carol during this trial, but the girl would not hear of it, and the little lady's heart told her also that it was best not so.

In the midst of her thoughts the lady was startled by a loud, authoritative rap upon the door and, somewhat confused, she hastily answered the summons.

When she opened the door she uttered a low, almost inaudible cry, and would have fallen but for the support her hand afforded her.

The curtain of fifteen years had been swept aside by the hand of fate, and those two who had loved and parted in the past were now brought together over the grave of their only child's hopes.

Face to face stood Lawrence Richmond and the wife whom he had not once seen since that bitter parting.

CHAPTER XV.

Something within seemed to tell Carol that the meeting she had looked forward to with such aversion, and yet at the same time a strange eagerness, as though anxious to have it over with, was about to take place that day.

When she left the mill she wended her way slowly through the forest to a favorite spot of hers, and, reaching it, sat down at the base of a huge elm tree. It was the summit of quite an elevation and the view on either hand was perfectly grand, embracing, as it did, so many vistas where openings occurred through which the eye ranged far away to the river, and to a still greater elevation.

Alone with her thoughts she was accustomed to seeking this spot, and it seemed as if her very surroundings gave her comfort, yet nothing could ease the terrible pain that tugged at her heart-strings.

She held a book in her hand, but it did not occupy her attention, for her gaze was far away, and her mind evidently upon the one subject nearest her heart.

Thus she sat when the eager eyes of an approaching man fell upon her, and the spectacle brought him to a sudden pause. There was that in her attitude that brought most vividly to his mind their first meeting, when she sat by the brook, watching the gambols of the little deer, and as he gazed Roger stifled a groan of despair.

When she knew that it was Roger who was drawing near, Carol's face whitened until it resembled the driven snow, while her peartly teeth seemed to penetrate the scarlet lips, and from her eyes there gleamed a strong light, such as may be seen in the orbs of a poor hunted deer, brought to bay and turning upon his hunters.

When Roger had come close to her she turned her face and looked at him. He could not help giving an exclamation.

"Good heaven! Carol, what is the matter with you? Your face is like death, and your eyes shine as with a fever. There is that upon your features that repels me, eye, stabs to the heart. For heaven's sake tell me what you intend to say, for something warns me the worst has not yet come. Are we not to be friends, Carol?"

Then she laughed—such a hollow mockery of a laugh. It was no more like the ringing merriment of old than she was like the artless girl whom Roger had met that fateful day.

"You come here and ask me that—you, of all men on earth? Does not your heart reproach you, the heart to which human misery appealed in vain? You tell me I look like death. Well, my heart is dead, and to you belongs the blame. I live, and yet do not live; I breathe the fresh, pure air of heaven, but there is nothing fair in my sight now. A bright rest upon all the earth. When the eye is distorted all objects upon which it falls assume the same phase. So it is with me. Need I say more, sir?"

He stood there, stricken dumb with amazement, eye, with horror. What a terrible crime he must have been guilty of in her sight to call out this from the lips that had never spoken a cross word before. It began to anger him. He had suffered as man could hardly suffer twice in a lifetime, and he counted it as naught. Finally he found his voice, and, in spite of his efforts, it trembled like a tightly strung cord.

"Carol, we stand here face to face. The past, with all its joys and sorrows, lies behind us, the future before, but we live only in the present. Since last we met you have changed wonderfully. Tell me why it is you look with aversion where once you loved."

Something in his voice aroused all the impetuosity of her nature. For the time she forgot how she had loved, did love even then, deep down in her heart, this man who stood before her with bared head, his arms folded across his chest, and his frank eyes fastened upon her. She only remembered how he had deceived her, and that beneath this proud exterior must beat a heart blacker than sin.

"Where once I loved; you have said it, Roger Darrel. May heaven forgive you for deceiving me as you did," she cried.

"I deceive you, Carol?" he echoed.

"Those were my words, sir. I will put them stronger if you wish—basely deceived me. On the very night after you saved me from that wicked wedding, Nora Warner was dragged away by the minions of that wretch of a mad-house doctor, dragged off to misery and racking pain, and by your orders. Do not attempt to deny it, sir, for I can see the assumed look of innocent surprise on your face. You brought her to a living death, you ruined the life of the gypsy girl, Barbara Merriels, and then, with your face and sweet words, you tried to lure me to destruction."

"What?"

The word burst from him like a pistol shot. As if by magic the cloud was lifted, and he saw into what a terrible mistake the young girl had fallen. His eyes were opened to the truth, but it only served to make his blood flow more rapidly with indignation and anger.

"For whom do you take me?" he asked coldly.

"You yourself declared that you were Roger Darrel, and Roger Darrel is the man who sent his wife to the asylum to be made mad. Surely the curse of heaven must follow that man forever; surely the cries of his victims must ascend on high and reach the great white throne. For myself, I forgive you freely, because I love—have loved you in the past, but in the name of those whom you have wronged in the past I could almost ask heaven to crush you, broken-hearted as I am."

"Save your pardon for those who ask it, Miss Richmond. As for me, I do not seek it. Looking back upon my past life, I do not see an event for which I may have occasion to blush. As for these things of which you accuse me, the day will come when you will realize what a terrible mistake you have made, and you will cry out to heaven to cover your head. I am a proud man, and from no other lips than yours would I hear such words. You have now gone too far. Some day shortly I will seek you to show you the proofs of my innocence; seek you to prove all that I ever claimed to be; seek you to show that it was the taint on my family name I feared, not because I had ever done aught that could bring disgrace upon myself or the one I loved, and having done this, I will throw your love from me like a tattered glove, for it was false—false."

She uttered a low, piteous cry and held out her hands for him to step, but he went on mercilessly, for she had roused the lion.

"Once you told me your love was as durable as the rocks of the cliff; that through good and evil report you would trust in me until my lips sounded your death blow. How has it come out? At the first breath of suspicion, your love shudders and shrivels up, turning to loathing. If that is your priceless love, then heaven help the next man upon whom you bestow it. I am going, Miss Richmond. What are you still doing? We shall meet once more, and when you see me as the man I am, and not in the guise of a villain who chances to belong to my family and wears my name, then perhaps you will deign to offer me your forgiveness."

With these last bitter words, he wheeled. One flash from his eyes and he had gone—gone from her in hot anger; gone to collect the proof that was to overwhelm her, while she sat there, and howling her head, wept bitter tears, for the spell was again upon her, and she would have believed him innocent of those awful sins even should the whole world accuse him.

CHAPTER XVI.

On the Potomac! "The princely home" provided for his mad wife by Captain Grant—otherwise the insane asylum of Dr. Grim, stood upon the left bank of the river, and close to the descent by which the water could be reached.

It was not a picturesque building. There was a something dark and forbidding about its exterior that seemed to speak in thunder tones of the secrets it contained. A gloomy pile of masonry, with small, barred windows, and surrounded by a high wall—there it stood, a curse upon the face of nature.

In one of the little cell-like rooms was Nora Warner. They had brought her back senseless, and when she awoke to find more it was to find herself within the confines of the hated asylum where she had already spent so many months of weary agony.

Up to this time Doctor Grim had not been very particular about inflicting any of the tortures of the place upon her, for his orders had principally been to hold her a prisoner. If she went insane, overcome by the horrors that surrounded her, well and good—in fact, so much the better—but so long as she received his pay and the Captain was satisfied, the Doctor did not waste his time in dealing severely with Nora Warner when he had his hands full at any rate.

Every now and then new patients arrived at the asylum, which was always full, and it might be noticed that just preceding each new arrival, a corpse was carried out of the back door. There was nothing secret about this matter of burial, and the people living in the vicinity had little idea of the heaped of iniquity they were fostering in their midst.

It seems they had not given Nora Warner credit for the sagacity she possessed. She had escaped from the house and fate had assisted to throw them off their guard by sending the poor girl with whom Nora had exchanged her shawl and hat, to her death in the river.

The Doctor was enraged when he returned home, though he did not show it. Indeed, the more furious his anger as a general rule, the more smiling became his face, but there was death in that smile.

He realized that by the escape of Nora Warner his institution had been placed in very great danger, for had she gone to the proper authorities they would have adjudged her perfectly sane and then believed her story, which would have meant ruin, financially, to him. He trembled with fear and anger whenever he thought of the narrow escape he had had, and inwardly swore that it should never occur again.

Nora Warner was the first sane person to escape from the walls of his domain, and she should be the last. Before a month went by he would cause her to lose her reason, and then if she should manage to get out, her talk would be an incoherent jumble of nonsense.

From the glowing description of the mad-house doctor of the "princely home" he provided for his poor patients, one could imagine much that was pleasant, from padded cells to elegant furniture and Brussels carpet.

The cell of Nora Warner was a fair sample of those in the institution, with the exception of a few comfortable ones that were occupied by those whose relatives really cared for them, and who had not suspected what a den they were sending the poor unfortunates to.

With the exception of a small iron cot, fastened to the floor, and a chair, secured in the same way, the cell was entirely destitute of furniture. The walls were damp and cold, and from the barred window one could look down into the grounds of the asylum.

Beyond the great stone wall the prisoner could see the waters of the Potomac glistening in the afternoon sun, as she stood there one day, her white hands crossed, and a strange look upon her face.

Packing a Picnic Dinner.

Whether the outing be for a day or a month, the lunch is of the most importance, and the question is, "How can it be taken the easiest?" Into a basket which must be brought back, or in boxes, which of course can be thrown away. Of course, the basket looks the better, and it is the proper thing if some one is willing to shoulder the burden, and for this purpose there are the most attractive ones imaginable for sale in the shops.

However, if it is to be a railroad lunch, the box idea is recommended. A big pasteboard one—the kind one's dresses come home in—may be filled with innumerable small boxes and jars. Tin cracker-boxes for all kinds of meats (luncheon)—such as chicken, beef, or ham cut in slices—small baking powder and spice boxes, or the little tin half-pound boxes druggists use, may be used for mayonnaise dressing, sandwich fillings, soft cheese mixtures, sweet pickles, marmalades, and jellies; even butter is better carried in a box, to be spread with a silver knife when needed. Small pasteboard boxes will do for bread and cake and even pie. Of course, all these boxes must be lined with paraffin paper, their covers neatly tied on and labeled, so that the unpacker will not serve dessert first—Woman's Home Companion.

A Weak Defense.

Mrs. Newed—I baked some bread this morning and placed it in the window to cool and a man snatched up a loaf of it and started to run away, but a policeman caught him.

Newed—Was he taken to jail?

Mrs. Newed—No. The poor fellow said he was starving, so I gave him the bread and told the policeman to let him go.

Newed—You have been imposed upon, my dear. That man wasn't starving.

Mrs. Newed—How do you know?

Newed—Because a starving man would never have the strength to run away with a loaf of your bread.

Double.

"What's the matter with Jones?"

"Why?"

"He goes along as abstractedly as though he were drunk and were seeing double."

"He is. They have twins at his home."

Green Bay, Wis., Oct. 11.—[Special.]—Ferdinand Dandoy of this city became suddenly insane last evening while standing at the bar in his saloon on Washington street.

Mr. Dandoy was speaking to an old acquaintance when suddenly he threw up both arms and started for the door running down the street. He was captured about three blocks from his place before he could injure any one and was taken to his home and a physician called who pronounced him insane, the cause being from smoking a pipe.

Mr. Dandoy is an old resident of this city and is between 50 and 60 years of age. He has been in the saloon business in this city for some time past, his birthplace being in Belgium.

BOY HURT IN RUNAWAY.

Ten-Year-Old Son of Peter Vosen of Reedsburg Meets with Serious Accident.

Reedsburg, Wis., Oct. 11.—[Special.]—Peter, the 10-year-old son of Peter Vosen, who resides about a mile west of this city, was seriously hurt as the result of being dragged by a runaway horse yesterday afternoon.

He was carrying water to some men in the field, some distance from the house and was riding a horse which had a harness on. The water jug, which he had fastened to the mane, frightened the animal. The boy lost his balance and fell, his foot becoming tangled in the harness. The boy was dragged for some distance before he became untangled from his perilous condition.

The riderless horse came to the house, and the members of the family and some of the help in the field soon found the unconscious boy who was suffering from severe bruises on the body and several scalp wounds. Medical aid was summoned, but it is feared the injuries will prove fatal.

BOY KILLS HIS MOTHER.

Slays One Sister and Fatally Wounds Four Other Children.

ATTACKED WITH AXE.

Strikes an Elder Brother, but Weapon Glanced and Assassin is Knocked Down with a Chair.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 10.—While laboring under mental aberration, the result of the strain of perfecting an appliance for patents on an machine which are pending in Washington, D. C., Charles Cawley, a 17-year-old boy of Homestead, Pa., early today killed his mother and one sister and fatally injured four other children. He also tried to kill his two other brothers, but was detected, overpowered and turned over to the police. The weapon used was an axe, with which he crushed and hacked his victims beyond recognition.

The Cawleys live in a neat six-room house on Second avenue, Homestead, and last night all the members retired about 10 o'clock. Mrs. Cawley and Belle occupied one bed, while the others, Josephine, Adeline, Raymond and Agnes occupied other beds and cribbed in the same room, which is on the second floor, rear. Charles, the murderer, his brother James, aged 20, and Harry, aged 14, occupied the front room, second door, adjoining their mother's room.

Some time about 3 o'clock this morning Charles quietly arose and dressing himself, but not putting on his shoes, crept down to the cellar and secured an axe. Coming upstairs he went into his mother's sleeping room, where the victims were all sleeping. After turning up the light the maniac approached his mother's bedside, swung the axe high in the air and brought it down with such force that the skull was crushed. The mother evidently never knew what struck her, but the crazed son, thinking that his first blow did not do its work, pounded the dead mother's head almost to a jelly.

Belle, the oldest daughter, still slept. The dull sound of the axe on her mother's head did not arouse her. Charles hurried to her side of the bed and struck her with the axe. It is thought that the first blow slipped and awoke the girl, but only for a second. She did not have time to scream, for the next blow killed her.

The fiend then turned to the smaller children and struck each one over the head with the bloody weapon.

Believing that he had dispatched them all, he started for his brothers' room, but James, the eldest, had been awakened by the groans in his mother's room, and as Charles entered he seized a heavy rocking chair and after a fierce struggle overpowered him and turned him over to the police. On the way to the station he fought furiously, but after being placed in a cell he calmed down and did not seem to realize what he had done.

When physicians reached the house Mrs. Cawley and Belle were dead. The others were still living, but the doctors announced that they could not live through the day.

Toews, a school teacher, had had some trouble with the school trustees and, using them on the road while going to school, drew a revolver and shot A. Kumpel, J. Hiebert and P. Kohler. Toews then returned to the school house and shot three pupils, two of them daughters of Mr. Kohler and the other a daughter of Mr. Kumpel. He then turned the revolver upon himself and will die. Kumpel, Hiebert and two of the girls are also fatally wounded.

Both had been dead some hours. The police believe that Pruitt killed his wife and then himself. The two are buried frequently. Pruitt killed a former wife several years ago. The coroner pronounced the killing accidental.

MARSHFIELD.

At its last meeting the city council discussed the matter of buying the present city waterworks and electric light plant with a view to giving the people better service and cheaper rates in both branches of the business. The city has suffered from lack of water and poor electric light service with exorbitant rates for many years, and the citizens have at last come to a realization of the fact. The inadequacy of the electric plant was brought before the people strongly at the time of the recent street fair, when it was impossible to secure the light necessary for the entertainment on account of lack of power. On this account the attractions had to be hunched a great deal more than they would have been, and the illumination was then very poor at times. The plant will be appraised by three appraisers and if the value of the plant is not too great it will be purchased.

Marshfield files are considering the feasibility of building a club house in the near future, although the details of the matter have not been thought out or even considered. It is a question with the order whether it would be better to put up a new building or buy one already up and remodel it so as to have accommodations for the lodge upstairs, with store room below. The lodge here has about one hundred and thirty members, and the capital for the enterprise would be easy to raise if the effort were made. The only drawback to building a new building would be the inability to secure a suitable site for the edifice.

There is some talk of dividing the city of Marshfield so as to set off the southern portion and add it to the town of Marshfield. The incorporated part of the city extends from the north to the south end of the township, a distance of six miles, and the inhabitants of this southern portion want the change made, claiming that their taxes are too high. It is possible that the change may be made.

Mayor Rose will speak in this city on the 28th instant, and it is also reported that Governor LaFollette will also be here some time this month.

His Life in Peril.

"I just seemed to have gone all to pieces," writes Alfred Bee, of Welfare, Tex., "biliousness and a lame back had made life a burden. I couldn't eat or sleep and felt almost too worn out to work when I began to use Electric Bitters, but they worked wonders. Now I sleep like a top, can eat anything, have gained in strength and enjoy hard work." They give vigorous health and new life to weak, sickly, run-down people. Try them. Only 50c at John E. A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies. All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record. For sale by Johnson & Hill Co. and Wood County Drug Co.

WM. E. WHEELAN,

Candidate for Member of Assembly.

Herewith is presented an engraving of our fellow townsman W. E. Wheelan, candidate for member of assembly. While Mr. Wheelan is probably well known to most of our city people, we feel it will be no more than justice to give a short sketch of his life for the benefit of those outside of the city who have not the advantage of his acquaintance and who are desirous of casting their ballot for a good man to assist in the government in the state and represent Wood county in the legislature.

Mr. Wheelan was born in the city of Grand Rapids in 1870, and is consequently in his 32nd year. He has lived his entire life in the city excepting the time he was away to attend the state university at Madison, during which time he was one of the bright students of that institution.

Since he graduated from the law school in 1897 Mr. Wheelan has practiced law in this city, and during that time he has been honored by the people of the city with several honorary offices, having held the office of mayor for two successive terms, before which he was supervisor of his ward on the county board for two years and city attorney for one term.

These offices in which Mr. Wheelan has been placed by his friends are positions which pay no salary, nor has he ever sought an office from the people where there was any compensation for the work he has so cheerfully given to the people, but in spite of this fact he has always discharged the duties of his position with the greatest fidelity and never failed to give the people as good or better service than they were in the habit of receiving from incumbents of these offices.

The democrats may well feel that they have put up a good man to represent them at Madison. A man who has the welfare of the people at heart and who will not let personal gain blind his eyes and allow him to be led from the way that will prove most beneficial to his constituents.

No matter what office Mr. Wheelan has filled in the city he has given the people such excellent satisfaction that he has been each time re-elected practically without opposition, which speaks well for his ability and integrity. And when the people cast a vote for him for member of assembly they can feel that they are doing the very best that they can do for the good of themselves and the public at large. He is a man who can be approached at any time by any sort of a man, whether he be dressed in broadcloth or overalls, and the petition of the poor will always receive as much consideration as that of the millionaire. These are some of the qualities that have made Mr. Wheelan popular in the city of Grand Rapids, and they are good qualities for a man to possess who holds the destiny of his constituents in his hand, and we counsel our many readers to cast their vote for him on the 4th of November and thus show that they appreciate true merit when it is brought before them.

AN EASY VICTORY.

MERRILL HIGH SCHOOL NOT IN IT

No Time During the Game That The Home Team Was in Any Danger of Losing.

Grand Rapids won another signal victory on Saturday when they met the Merrill high school team in this city at football. The visitors were not in it at any stage of the game and it was so easy for Grand Rapids that at times the spectators lost interest and the home boys made some very slack plays.

The game was called shortly after 2 o'clock. Grand Rapids kicked off. Merrill lost the ball immediately on a fumble and Grand Rapids steadily advanced it to the goal until Brennan was pushed through the line for a touchdown. Kelly kicked the goal.

Merrill kicked off. Grand Rapids caught the ball and made a fair advance. The visitors were unable to hold our boys and there was a steady advance until the pigskin was again carried over the goal line by Brennan. Kelly again kicked goal.

It was apparent to all by this time that Merrill was no match for the Grand Rapids team, as the visitors had not gained the ball once on downs, and in nearly every instance the Grand Rapids team made more than the required five yards on the first down.

Merrill again kicked off to Grand Rapids. Grand Rapids again advanced the ball steadily to the Merrill thirty yard line when they were set back five yards on a foul. The play had just got fairly started again when the half ended with the ball at Merrill's twenty yard line. The half ended with the score 12 to 0 in favor of Grand Rapids. At the beginning of the second half Merrill again kicked off and it was the same thing over again. Grand Rapids steadily advanced with good gains in nearly every scrimmage until Murgatroy went over the goal line with the ball neatly tucked under his arm.

Merrill again kicked off and Grand Rapids took the ball and made a steady advance until they reached the goal line when they lost the ball on downs. The ball now lay less than a foot from Merrill's goal and there was only a few minutes left to play. Merrill took the ball and made a good run around Grand Rapids' left end, carrying it to their 40 yard line. Here their man was downed and immediately afterward time was called, ending the game. This last play was the only advance made by Merrill that amounted to anything, but they seemed to have taken new vigor, and had there been more time they might have done something to redeem themselves. Score 17 to 0.

Our boys showed up heavier than the Merrill team, but had they been of the same weight the playing of Grand Rapids would have won them the game. The contest was somewhat of a disappointment to many of the spectators, as they had hoped for a close and hotly contested game.

Three years ago Merrill had a first class high school team, and it was hoped that they would put up a good game this year.

Following is the lineup of the two teams:

Grand Rapids.	Merrill.
C. Kanger.....center.....	Paul Busch
Guy Potter.....right guard.....	Sayer Odegaard
Lynn Renne.....left guard.....	Max VanHerke
K. Kelley.....right tackle.....	Raymond Hooke
E. Wood.....left tackle.....	William Elsen
McCarthy.....right end.....	George Dunn
Bande in.....left end.....	Walter Nugent
L. Horton.....quarter.....	Harold Empey
R. Murgatroy.....right half.....	Chester Hoffman
J. Concoran.....left half.....	John Lee
E. Brennan.....full back.....	Ralph Boyer
Roy Lester.....substitute.....	Norman Wentzel
Roy Getts.....substitute.....	Fred Schroeder

An Expensive Walk.

The jury in the case of Anna Lyon against the city of Grand Rapids brought in a verdict in favor of the plaintiff on Thursday evening awarding her damages to the extent of $4,000. The case occupied three days in the trial and was heard by quite an audience.

Mrs. Lyons was injured on a defective sidewalk one day last spring in such a manner that she was confined to her bed for some time and she placed her damages at $5,000, but it was not supposed that the jury would grant her as heavy damages as they did. Four thousand dollars would build quite a stretch of sidewalk, and it would probably be cheaper to keep the walks in repair than to take any chances.

High School Notes.

The Junior class had their first class meeting of the year Monday night. The following officers were elected: President, Kenneth Kelley; vice president, Emma Dolan; secretary and treasurer, Rosa Wiperman; censor, Clay Lamberton.

Last week all classes had their regular examinations for the first semi term. The Seniors were not examined in Composition.

Mr. Youker read a chapter from Charles Dudley Warner's "Being a Boy" yesterday morning for opening exercises.

At the football game Saturday Merrill was beaten by our boys. The score was 17 to 0.

Two new pupils are enrolled this week, Joe Daniels and Grover Stout of Babcock.

Chicken Pie Social.

There will be a chicken pie social at G. A. R. hall Thursday evening, Oct. 16th, from 5 to 8 o'clock p. m., under the auspices of the east side Ladies' Aid society of the Congregational church. Everybody is most cordially invited. Supper 25c.

Our Candidate for Congress.

The democrats of this section of the country have probably never put up a man for congress who was so universally endorsed by the people at large as Burt Williams of Ashland. Every class of people seems to be friendly toward him and that without solicitation on his part. Mr. Williams is not a millionaire and has used no money to bring the general public to his way of thinking but republicans and democrats alike have come out voluntarily and spoken a good word for him.

The Wausau Central Wisconsin, one of the leading republican papers in this district, in mentioning his nomination, says: "That this northern country holds out inducements to the young man, not to be thought of in the older communities is forcibly demonstrated in the case of Burt Williams, who recently received the democratic nomination for the office of congressman, and who is mayor of Ashland. This preferment was not due to influential relatives or the liberal use of money, for Williams is a newspaper man, and so far as this world's goods go is in about the same class as the rest of us. The new north is quick to recognize worth and ability and the young man who comes here with a determination to climb the ladder, who shows that he is in earnest, who is loyal to his friends, who is possessed of ability, need not have any fear. These are the requisites and these are the things that Williams possesses in a liberal degree."

At a meeting of the Ashland Central Council of the American Federation of labor held in Ashland recently the following resolutions were adopted: "Be it resolved that we, the members of Central Labor Council, representing organized labor of the city of Ashland, hereby pledge our earnest support to the candidacy of Burt Williams, for congress from this district. As a fellow citizen of ours he has in every way given his support in behalf of union labor and has always been the true friend of the laboring men in Ashland. He is eminently a true representative of the masses of the people and in the various contests in this city against corporate greed his efforts have invariably been enlisted in upholding the rights of the people. We feel that as congressman, his influence will be cast for legislation calculated to benefit the common people and particularly to advance the cause of union labor and we hope that laboring men all over the district will join in securing his election."

The members of the Central Labor Council comprises delegates from the various unions of the city of Ashland, including the tailors union, cigar makers union, longshoremen union, ore trimmers union, printers union, teamsters union, mill mens union, sailors union and the delegates of these unions were republicans, democrats and social democrats, indicating the esteem in which Mr. Williams is held by the people right at his home where he is known best.

The Antigo News Items, in speaking of Mr. Williams' candidacy, says: "From the present indications Burt Williams will make Congressman Brown a hustle to get elected this year. A large number of republicans in this vicinity have announced their intention to vote for Williams, believing him to be nearer the common people than the millionaire banker and lumberman Webb Brown."

BANK ROBBERS HERE

PORTAGE CO. SHERIFF ON TRAIL

Almond Bank Robbers Thought to Have Been in This City Last Week Tuesday.

On Tuesday evening the sheriff of Portage county and a Pinkerton detective were in the city looking for the men who broke open the bank at Almond and rifled one of the safes of the contents, carrying away with them about $150.

The sheriff of Portage county is Charles Gaylord, and he stated that there were three men in the party of bank robbers, one of them being a short, good looking man with a dark mustache and the other two tall men with smooth faces. The men stole a horse and buggy when they made their escape over a week ago, and although the officers have been hunting since then, nothing has been heard of either the men or the rig, the whole outfit seeming to have disappeared from the face of the earth.

When a description of the men was given to Landford Croteau, he remembered of three men entering his hotel one night last week, so far as he can remember on Tuesday evening, but the house being full, he could not give them lodging and they went somewhere else. As they were in the house only a few minutes Mr. Croteau did not get their description very firmly fixed in his mind, but so far as he could remember it tallied with that given by the sheriff.

It begins to look as if there was not much hope of capturing the men if they have any money to travel with, as they have a week start and could be several thousand miles distant should they care to put this distance between them and their pursuers.

A Small Blaze.—Fire was discovered in the G. A. R. hall this noon and an alarm soon brought out the fire department. The blaze was found to be in the basement of the building and two lines of hose were quickly attached to the hydrant near by and in a few minutes the portion under the building had been flooded and every vestige of fire extinguished. It was found on examination that the fire originated just above the furnace where the hot air pipes come very close to the joist, and these had been burned a trifle as was also the floor in the hall about the register. The damage is only nominal and can be repaired for a few dollars. It was a sort of a practical test of the waterworks, however, and showed that a stream could be got in this manner much quicker than by the use of the engine, and if necessary several more streams could have been secured in short order.

Diver at Work.—A diver was brought here on Saturday and the pipe line that crosses the river was gone over by him for the purpose of discovering if possible where the leaks were that had been giving the trouble on this stretch of line. An air pressure of forty pounds to the square inch was put into the pipes, but no leak could be discovered in this manner. Water pressure was applied up to 150 pounds but still the leaks were not apparent. The work done on the pipe helped it somewhat, however, and Engineer Pfeiffer feels confident that it will fill the requirements. The rest of the pipe line about the city is now so tight that it more than fills the bill, the leakage being less than that allowed on a line of this length.

May Not Have Been Rabies.—Nothing having been heard from the dog's head that was sent to Madison for the purpose of discovering what ailed the animal, it had become a question in the minds of those interested here whether the dog was affected with hydrophobia at all or not. In testing for this disease a number of rabbits are inoculated and if rabies develop there is no question but what the dog was similarly affected, but if nothing out of the ordinary occurs it is concluded that the dog was affected with something else. As plenty of time has elapsed and nothing has been heard from the matter it has been about concluded that it might have been some other ailment.

A Small Meeting.—Last Saturday evening a socialist held forth at the G. A. R. hall and explained to the few that assembled the beauties of socialism. Some very alluring pictures can be drawn of the conditions of society under socialistic reign, but like many other things they might not prove so beautiful viewed at closer range. It is easy to picture an ideal state of existence under almost any government, but the schemes are hard to work in practice for to reason that human beings seem to have a certain amount of brute nature in their make up, and no amount of theory will take it out of them.

Potatoes May Boom.—During a talk with an old potato man on Saturday that gentleman stated that his opinion was that potatoes were going to be much better in price, and that before long. Potatoes that are bought here were being shipped to Detroit, which is located in a country that generally produces a great surplus of the tubers, which would indicate a very short crop over there. He stated also that if he had a place for storing he would not be afraid to invest in a few thousand bushels and take a chance of their going up later in the season.

Might Have Been Serious.—Priscilla, the little daughter of Mrs. L. Akey, swallowed a moth ball while her mother was employed in making some purchases in Spafford's store on Thursday. The accident was discovered at once and the services of a physician employed and the little girl suffered no ill effects. Just what the effect of moth balls would be on the human system cannot be stated, but it would not seem as if they would prove very wholesome for a steady diet, and the little girl was lucky to escape so easily.

A Fine Turnout.—O. Boyer, proprietor of the Riverside steam laundry, received a new delivery wagon this week which is a beauty and would be an ornament to any business. The wagon is a covered rig with plate glass windows on all sides and finished in the highest style of art. The outfit was manufactured by the O. Armleader company of Cincinnati, who make a specialty of this sort of thing and cost Mr. Boyer something like two hundred dollars delivered.

Awarded $1,000.—The jury in the case of Lydia Duncan vs. the City of Grand Rapids brought in a verdict for the plaintiff on Monday for the sum of $1,000. The plaintiff was injured on a defective walk some time ago, injuring her hip, straining her back, etc., from which she suffered great pain and inconvenience, and for which she claimed damages to the extent of $5,000. After hearing all the evidence the jury decided that about one thousand would cover the case and made their decision accordingly.

A Sad Case.—The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Young died last Wednesday morning as the result of convulsions, the little one being found dead in the bed that morning. A physician was summoned, but he had been procured too late to render any aid. Mrs. Young, who had been in the hospital receiving treatment, came home the same day that her baby died, and as her first question was for her little one, she was naturally greatly shocked to hear of his death.

Was Found Dead.—John G. Faulds of the Grantsburg Journal office, who had been missing for some time, past, was found dead in the woods on Saturday by an Indian. Faulds formerly lived in this city and was well known here, being employed in newspaper work. He had gone into the woods some time before and it is supposed that his reason forsook him and that he wandered about until he starved to death.

New Football Team.—Some of the boys about town have organized a football team in this city and will begin practice at once. They have their first game a week from next Sunday at Nekoosa when they will play the team of that city. There is a lot of good material here and the boys should be able to get up a strong team. The lineup has not been perfected as yet, but will be given later.

A New Dynamo.—The electric light plant of the Electric and Water company received their new dynamo during the past week and the large generator has been placed in position and will hereafter be used to furnish the power and light for the city. Heretofore the power has been furnished by two dynamos, but the new one will take the place of both of these, being of 500 horse power.

Dogs Caught Running.—Eternal vigilance is the price of success in keeping a dog nowadays. Last week George Atkins had to pay a fine of $5 on account of his dog having escaped from confinement and later A. P. Hirzy and F. MacKinnon were held up for the same amount, their dogs having gotten away for a few minutes and being seen by the dog police.

Drove Too Fast.—Conrad Konash of Milladore was arrested by Officer Gariche on Saturday for driving over the bridge at a faster rate of speed than the law on the subject allows. He paid a fine of five dollars and costs when taken before Justice Crotteau, amounting in all to $3.32, and departed on his way a sadder and poorer man.

Bowling Season Opens.—Jacob Lutz will open his bowling alley tomorrow evening. He has the place thoroughly renovated and in good shape for the entertainment of those who enjoy this popular sport, and as usual on such occasions there will no doubt be a good crowd in attendance.

Still at It.—County Clerk Renne has issued one thousand hunting licenses up to date, and the demand still remains firm, with a slightly downward tendency to the market. Unless the signs fail he will issue a total of fifteen hundred licenses this year.

Some Cold Weather.—Sunday and Monday were two wet and disagreeable days, and were followed on Monday night by a heavy frost, quite thick ice being formed in all exposed places.

Payne-Binneboese.

This afternoon at two o'clock occurred the marriage of Roland S. Payne to Miss Emma Binneboese. The ceremony occurred at the Lutheran church, Rev. Baum officiating. Scott and Lee Payne attended the groom and Misses Ida Binneboese and Lydia Dixon were the bridesmaids.

Both of the contracting parties are residents of the south side, where Mr. Payne is a faithful employe in the paper mill, being a machine tender, and they are well and most favorably known to a large circle of warm friends.

After the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride where the invited friends assembled and joined in wishing the young couple Godspeed on their journey through life. The Tribune extends congratulations.

MARSHFIELD.

At its last meeting the city council discussed the matter of buying the present city waterworks and electric light plant with a view to giving the people better service and cheaper rates in both branches of the business. The city has suffered from lack of water and poor electric light service with exorbitant rates for many years, and the citizens have at last come to a realization of the fact. The inadequacy of the electric plant was brought before the people strongly at the time of the recent street fair, when it was impossible to secure the light necessary for the entertainment on account of lack of power. On this account the attractions had to be bunched a great deal more than they would have been, and the illumination was then very poor at times. The plant will be appraised by three appraisers and if the value of the plant is not too great it will be purchased.

Marshfield Elks are considering the feasibility of building a club house in the near future, although the details of the matter have not been thought out or even considered. It is a question with the order whether it would be better to put up a new building or buy one already up and remodel it so as to have accommodations for the lodge upstairs, with store room below. The lodge here has about one hundred and thirty members, and the capital for the enterprise would be easy to raise if the effort were made. The only drawback to building a new building would be the inability to secure a suitable site for the edifice.

There is some talk of dividing the city of Marshfield so as to set off the southern portion and add it to the town of Marshfield. The incorporated part of the city extends from the north to the south end of the township, a distance of six miles, and the inhabitants of this southern portion want the change made, claiming that their taxes are too high. It is possible that the change may be made.

Mayor Rose will speak in this city on the 28th instant, and it is also reported that Governor LaFollette will also be here some time this month.

WM. E. WHEELAN,

Candidate for Member of Assembly.

Herewith is presented an engraving of our fellow townsman W. E. Wheelan, candidate for member of assembly. While Mr. Wheelan is probably well known to most of our city people, we feel it will be no more than justice to give a short sketch of his life for the benefit of those outside of the city who have not the advantage of his acquaintance and who are desirous of casting their ballot for a good man to assist in the government in the state and represent Wood county in the legislature.

Mr. Wheelan was born in the city of Grand Rapids in 1870, and is consequently in his 32nd year. He has lived his entire life in the city excepting the time he was away to attend the state university at Madison, during which time he was one of the bright students of that institution.

Since he graduated from the law school in 1897 Mr. Wheelan has practiced law in this city, and during that time he has been honored by the people of the city with several honorary offices, having held the office of mayor for two successive terms, before which he was supervisor of his ward on the county board for two years and city attorney for one term.

These offices in which Mr. Wheelan has been placed by his friends are positions which pay no salary, nor has he ever sought an office from the people where there was any compensation for the work he has so cheerfully given to the people, but in spite of this fact he has always discharged the duties of his position with the greatest fidelity and never failed to give the people as good or better service than they were in the habit of receiving from incumbents of these offices.

The democrats may well feel that they have put up a good man to represent them at Madison. A man who has the welfare of the people at heart and who will not let personal gain blind his eyes and allow him to be led from the way that will prove most beneficial to his constituents.

No matter what office Mr. Wheelan has filled in the city he has given the people such excellent satisfaction that he has been each time re-elected practically without opposition, which speaks well for his ability and integrity. And when the people cast a vote for him for member of assembly they can feel that they are doing the very best that they can do for the good of themselves and the public at large. He is a man who can be approached at any time by any sort of a man, whether he be dressed in broadcloth or overalls, and the petition of the poor will always receive as much consideration as that of the millionaire. These are some of the qualities that have made Mr. Wheelan popular in the city of Grand Rapids, and they are good qualities for a man to possess who holds the destiny of his constituents in his hand, and we counsel our many readers to cast their vote for him on the 4th of November and thus show that they appreciate true merit when it is brought before them.

SPINNING WHEEL.

A BACHELOR'S CONFESSION.

At twenty I most deeply loved
A maid whose witching way
Captured my heart completely.
As she cooed me at night,
Alas! She's now a grandmother
With snowy pompadour.
Who, through her longnet, watches me
While I dance the dancing floor.
I felt at thirty in my heart
A deeper feeling dawn
For one with whom I constantly
Played tennis on the lawn.
A matrimonial match was made
This early dawn of mine.
I still admire her fervently.
Her diapers are so fine.
At forty on the golf links
A peerless doctress I met,
I followed one for whom my heart
Beat with a passion deathless.
This later love is married, too.
And grows a trifle stout.
Who, when we meet, most tenderly
Inquires about my govt.
At fifty now my heart is still
In perfect preservation.
After such doctresses, calm it has.
But yet it feels the self-same thrill
Which it has known so long.
When she, the very youngest lead,
Is teaching me the ping pong.

Should scientific observation supersede domestic discipline? This interesting question is suggested by a comical story told in "Here in New York" by the Evening Post: "A young university professor, living uptown, is a close student and a writer of some authority on the science of kindergarten and child study. He never lets pass an opportunity to make observations and studies in actual life, and for the purpose keeps voluminous notebooks in which he records strict instances and his deductions from them. One night this week, as is his custom, he had one of the students in his classes as a guest at dinner. In the course of the meal the professor's little son, a child of five, was given a hot baked biscuit to stay his hunger. He examined it with a dispassionate eye, and then threw it across the table. It struck the student fairly on the chest and slid glacier-like down his shirt front, leaving a trail of warm grease. The professor and his wife saw the incident but paid no heed. The student politely ignored to take action. The young bread-baker, however, proved another lesson, again, as it hurtling across the table. This time it struck the young man on the chin. He started to speak, but the professor's wife held up her hand in warning. "Shh!" she said, "the professor is observing him."

William La Forge received a letter from the manager of the Milwaukee Journal, asking for a picture of his giant squash spoken of in our last issue. "The squash will no doubt be photographed, and copies sent to different points to show the prolific properties of the soil in this locality,"—Cotfax Messenger.

He had called at a house in the suburbs on business, and as he arose to go he said: "I believe you were in the lake district last summer?" "Yes." "No fishing?" "Yes." "Catch anything?" "One little perch." "Ha, ha, ha! That's what I expected. Well, good night."

When the caller had gone the wife said indignantly: "Richard, how can you sit there and tell stories in that bold way? You know we caught over twenty fish weighing five pounds apiece, and that big jack weighed eleven pounds!" "My dear wife," returned the husband soothingly, "you don't know human nature. That man is now willing to take my word for $500. If I had told him of those fish he would have gone away believing me to be the biggest fibber in the kingdom."—Herald.

Towne—I never expected Goodfellow to become such a common bore; one of the common herd, in fact.

Towne—Yes, comparatively. He is one of the multitude whose coal dealer warned them last spring to get in their winter's coal and they were just going to, but—

Some of Camden's "practical" politicians were talking Pennsylvania politics the other evening on the porch of the West Jersey Hotel, and the discussion naturally drifted into a discussion of the reform movements that have marked the campaigns here in recent years. One of the group said that Penn. is a "reformers' state," and that Philadelphia's reformers always reminded him of the village tippler whose wife, after trying for years to cure him, felt impelled to call in the services of the local minister. The minister exhorted, argued and moralized for half an hour or more, and wound up with the sage observation:

"Remember, good brother, it is never too late to mend."

"The ye really mean that, parson—that it's never too late?" asked the unrepentant one.

"Surely, brother—it's never too late," replied the parson.

"Well, if that's the case," rejoined the tippler, "I believe I'll wait a little while longer."—Philadelphia Ledger.

"Much business this morning?" said the chemist to his new assistant as he entered the shop, who was also a post-office carrier.

"Yes, sir," replied the youth. "I have had a busy morning in to look at the directory, and I've obliged eight people with postage stamps, besides changing a dollar."—New York News.

Also—"You see," said the young man who was explaining the minute work of the watch, "the minute work of the watch is carried on the same as in actual warfare, except that the minute work is carried on the minute work of the watch, and the minute work of the watch is carried on the minute work of the watch."

"Technically?" asked the young woman.

"Technically," replied the young man.

William J. Florence, at the end of a not very prosperous engagement in San Francisco, announced a benefit for himself and wife. The late John W. Mackay happened to be in town at the time and wrote to Florence for one orchestra seat. It was duly sent, as a matter of course, and Mrs. Florence remarked to her husband that, considering the friendship existing between the two men, she thought Mr. Mackay might have taken a private box at least.

"Well," said Florence, "he has not paid for it yet and I am in no hurry."

The benefit took place. Mr. Mackay occupied the seat he had taken and a day later he sent Florence a check for $1000.

Hobbs—I tell you what, Harry, I wish I had enough money to relieve all the distress amongst the poor people of this town.

Judge Pennsylvania, as court was about to open, was accosted one morning by a little girl, who said: "Please, sir, my father wants to know if you can't excuse him from the jury today. He can't get his shoes on."

"Why what's the trouble, little one?" asked the judge, kindly.

She looked at the floor and did not reply, and he, thinking there was a deception, repeated his question, but in sterner tones.

"Why, it's because he don't wear boots, sir; but I wasn't told to tell you that. Papa's the man with the wooden leg, sir."—Philadelphia Times.

"Better take this trade on my terms," said the first farmer urged. "It's a bargain."

"No, sir," replied the other. "I want something to boot."

"Ward, I wish you'd have something to boot of you don't make the trade. You'll want to kick yourself."—Philadelphia Press.

In a class in a downtown school in a crowded section a reading lesson was in progress and the word orchard occurred. The teacher tested the knowledge of the reader, a boy of 11 years, by asking him if he knew what an orchard was.

"Yes, sir," came the reply promptly. "A place where apples and peaches grow and potatoes, tomatoes and scallions and onions, too."

"Why, John, you know better than that. Only fruit is found in an orchard, not vegetables."

"Well, teacher, the peddlers all call them out like that," was John's explanation as he went on with his reading.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Here's a late story about Christian Science: A Boston mother said to her little daughter: "If you had my faith, darling, you would have no toothache."

The child replied: "Well, mother, if you had my toothache you wouldn't have any faith."—Boston Herald.

In order to discourage the use of objectionable words the father had evolved a system of fines, somewhat after this fashion:

Hang it—One cent.
Damn it—Two cents.
Gosh—Three cents.
Gosh darn it—Five cents.

The boy who was to be reformed by this method studied the tariff with considerable interest, but it was some time before he spoke.

"Well," he said at last, "I guess I know some words that would cost a quarter."—Chicago Evening Post.

But soon to be—Miss Assum—Wasn't that Mr. Bonds I saw you walking with last evening. Miss Coy—Yes, Miss Assum—He's a landed freholder in the county, isn't he? Miss Coy (blushing)—Well—er—he isn't quite landed yet.—Philadelphia Press.

The late Sir Frank Lockwood, famous English lawyer, was once in Yorkshire defending a man who was accused of stealing a donkey, when a witness for the prosecution declared he beheld the whole proceedings from afar. "Now, my man," quoth Mr. Lockwood, as he then was, "you must be extremely careful in your statements. You say you watched this affair from afar. Tell me, now, how far can you see a donkey to really know its points?" "Just as far off as I am from you, master," replied the yokel. And the great Q. C. subsided.

"How come you always hear death rattle of a white horse?" asked the colored deacon. "In what way calls de eternal fitness or things, he order come for de nigger a-straddle of a mule."—Atlanta Constitution.

"I say, didn't I see you running down the street yesterday, with Bill Boone after you?"

"What did you run away for?"

"I was only running so as to get him away from his home, so as his mother couldn't see him fighting; but by the time he was out of sight of his home we got in sight of our house, and then, as my mother would see me if I stopped to hit him, I went in so as to be out of temptation."—New York News.

The owners of a successful and prosperous manufactory at some distance from New York have been kept so busy by visitors to whom no invitations had been sent that they had prepared a schedule as follows, with a postscript informing their friends that they will attend to their own business between sunset and sunrise: "Commercial travelers, 7 to 11; solicitors for church subscriptions, 11 to 1; book agents, 1 to 2; stationary peddlers and insurance agents, all day."

SUFFERED SEVEN YEARS

With Catarrhal Derangements of the Pelvic Organs.

Hundreds of Dollars Spent in Vain—Peruna Cured.

Miss Kate Brown.

Miss Kate Brown, Recording Secretary of the L. C. B. Association of Kansas, in a letter from 605 N. Seventh St., Kansas City, Kan., says:

"For seven years I have not known what it was to spend a well day. I caught a severe cold which I neglected. It was at the time of menstruation and inflammation set in and prostrated me. Catarrh of the kidneys and bladder followed, my digestive organs gave way, in fact the cold disarranged my whole system."

"I spent hundreds of dollars with doctors and medicine, but derived but little benefit until I began treatment with Peruna. I kept taking it for nearly nine months before I was completely cured, but I kept growing better gradually so that I felt encouraged to continue taking Peruna until my health was restored. I send my thanks and blessings to you for Peruna."—Miss Kate Brown.

A neglected cold is frequently the cause of death.

It is more often, however, the cause of some chronic disease.

There is not an organ in the body but what is liable to become seriously deranged by a neglected cold. Diseases of the kidneys, bladder and digestive organs are all frequently the result of a neglected cold.

Hundreds of dollars are spent on doctors and medicines trying to cure these diseases, but until the true cause of them is discovered, there will be no use in using medicine.

Dyspepsia, medicine, diarrhoea, medicine and constipation medicine is of no good whatever when catarrh is the cause. The catarrh must be treated. The cause being removed, the derangements will disappear.

Peruna cures catarrh of the digestive organs, the urinary organs or any of the internal organs.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

Right to the Point!

We agree with you that the daily news of the world's doings makes more interesting reading than the plain unvarnished facts of an advertisement, but are the reporters' tales so profitable and interesting, yes, attractive, naturally; how better can we offset your prejudice than by making the daily store news brief, by avoiding meaningless trade terms and getting "right to the point." You who do not know the clothing business from the loom to the finished garment must depend upon the reputation of the store from which you buy. Confidence must exist between buyer and seller and too, there must be a strong foundation for that confidence. Enough--let 10 years of fair and upright business decide you where to buy.

That Coal Strike.

The coal strike is still on notwithstanding the strenuous efforts of the president and the rest of them. The capitalists now tell us that the payment of higher wages to the miners would mean the making of coal so high that it would drive the commercial industries out of the country. They say that this is the reason that England is so rapidly losing her prestige as a manufacturing country, because the miners banded themselves together and raised wages to such an extent that it brought the price of coal up so that it cannot be used by the factories and they are all moving over here. They have told us heretofore that the growth of our manufacturing was entirely due to the protective tariff, but of course they may have found out that they are mistaken in the matter. It is also queer that if the high wages makes coal so high in the old country it is necessary to have a protective tariff on coal to keep it from being shipped to this country. Seems as if there was something about this matter that has not been explained as yet, but they may think out a solution before they get through with it.

A Communication.

—Mr. Editor—Allow me to speak a few words of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I suffered for three years with the bronchitis and could not sleep at nights. I tried several doctors and various patent medicines, but could get nothing to give me any relief until my wife got a bottle of this valuable medicine, which has completely relieved me. —W. S. Brock-Bangnell, Mo. This remedy is for sale by Johnson & Hill and Co. and Wood County Drug Co.

—When wiring your house, for electric lights choose the man who is the most skilled in that particular line. The requirements of an inside wireman are large, as he must be somewhat of a carpenter and know to a large extent how buildings are constructed, must be a "handy man," must be able to use soldering tools and know how to do a neat and clean job. For neatness and workmanship get G. M. Huntington. Telephone 231.

Husband and Wife Disagree.

Husband and wife often disagree about some matter that concerns each other and frequently the husband finds that his wife's judgment is the best, the case of Mr. John W. Young of Lincoln, Ill., is however an exception, he says: "My wife and I both had a severe cold and we decided to get some kind of medicine. I bought for myself a bottle of Hart's Honey and Horehound and taking it as directed was well in a short time. She wanted another kind and with the result that she still has a bad cough. I advised her to take Hart's Honey and Horehound and think she will have to do so if she gets well this winter." Sold by Sam Church druggist.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy Saved His Boy's Life.

"I believe I saved my nine year old boy's life this winter with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says A. M. Hope, Rio Creek, Wis. "He was so choked up with the croup that he could not speak. I gave it to him freely until he vomited and in a short time he was all right." For sale by Johnson & Hill Co. and Wood County Drug Co.

Stricken With Paralysis

Henderson Grinett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, his wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured.—Geo. R. McDonald, Man. Logan county, W. Va. Several other remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. For sale by Johnson & Hill Co. and Wood County Drug Co.

Two years ago when the primary election bill was before the state legislature and it looked as if it might become a law, the Tribune was strongly against the measure, and gave many reasons for the opposition. Since studying the matter more thoroughly we don't know but the measure would be a good thing—for the newspapers. Under the Australian system of balloting it costs all the way from 50 cents to a dollar and a half for each vote cast, and if the primary election measure became a law this figure would be doubled. Now the greater part of this money would go to the newspapers, and would amount to a nice little sum every time we have an election. As everybody else who can get their finger into the public treasury is engaged in bleeding the state, we can't see why it would not be a good thing for the newspapers to come in on the deal also. It would still be a lot cheaper than supporting 52 game wardens, and would be of just as much use to the public.

At the republican caucuses in Door county on Saturday the anti-LaFollette faction carried the convention bodily, not a LaFollette supporter getting a place on the ticket. This is the home of Henry Overbeck, Governor LaFollette's chief game warden and Mr. Overbeck has been the assemblyman from that district for a number of years and also held the position of chairman of the county committee. He wanted both of these jobs again, but was ousted and a strong stalwart put in both places. This does not look as if all the counties of the state were looking to Bob to save the country from going to the demerit bow wows.

One day last week while Governor LaFollette was making a speech down in the southern part of the state he was telling of how few people attend the caucuses as they exist today, expecting thereby to illustrate the usefulness of the primary election law. He asked his audience how many of them had attended all the caucuses, and after waiting for some time one lone man held up his hand. The governor smiled blandly and told the man that he must have lots of leisure time on his hands. It was subsequently discovered that the man was a game warden.

During the past two weeks the democratic nominees for county offices have been making an active campaign throughout the country and so far as they have gone they have met with the utmost encouragement and feel confident of meeting with success when the votes are counted later. The men on the democratic ticket this fall are all good men and competent to fill the offices to which they have been nominated, and should receive the support of all fair minded citizens.

From the Journal of Education, Boston, November, 1900: "Of course the credit for this successful association meeting belongs to no one person, for the whole city of Wausau had to lend a hand, but chiefly to Karl Mathie is the official credit due. Mathie is a force. Wausau is his home, here he was a school boy and from here he went to college, both West and East Harvard, and before he had fairly begun work elsewhere he was called home to run things educationally, which he is doing to the queen's taste.

Goes Like Hot Cakes.
"The fastest selling article I have in my store," writes druggist C. T. Smith of Davis, Ky., "Is Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, because it always cures. In my six years of sales it has never failed. I have known it to save sufferers from Throat and Lung diseases, who could get no help from doctors or any other remedy." Mothers rely on it, best physicians prescribe it, and John E. Daly guarantees satisfaction or refund price. Trial bottle free. Reg. sizes, 50c and $1.

Marriage in this day and generation is taken too lightly. The ease with which divorce is obtained leads to entering upon marriage almost in the light of an experiment. "If I don't like it, I'll get out of it." This spirit is a most deadly enemy to happiness and sanctity of home. It is throwing down every safeguard of the family. In the frequency of divorce lies the greatest menace to the morals of the nation. To women must we look to ward off this danger. It is woman who must save the nation from becoming absolutely dissolute.

Mothers should rouse themselves to see the dangers which threaten their daughters, and their sons as well. A girl marrying recklessly ruins a man's life as well as her own. Girls should not be allowed to marry in ignorance of the duties and responsibilities which they undertake.

Marriage is entered upon from various motives. One girl marries because a man is fine looking and has stylish manner; another for an establishment or a carriage and span of handsome horses. One girl may accept a man because he is a "great catch" and she will be the envy of all the other girls who would gladly have been chosen. Some girls simply marry because the opportunity comes to them. No such marriage as any of these promises much happiness. There is no reason why a girl need marry for a living or drift into marriage without thought. Mothers should instruct their daughters in those things which most tend to happiness in marriage.

Marriage without love and respect as a foundation cannot be justified. Besides love there must be unselfishness. There should be congenial taste and mutual aims in life. Perfection in any human being is not found, so forbearance, patience, forgiveness, should be cultivated. Love cannot live long without respect. A girl should thoroughly scan her motives for marriage, and if they do not come up to a high standard, if she cannot look upon it as sacred and permanent, she would better refuse it. Let the girls know that marriage is for life; for sickness, sorrow, misfortune, for motherhood, for all vicissitudes that may come and to death. If she cannot love truly enough to meet these, if she cannot reconcile herself to such outlook, she will do well to remain single.

Barbarous Symbol.

Next time you drop in on your barber to have a shave or hair cut ask him why he has a pole with white and red stripes on at his door. The chances are that he will tell you it is to let the people know there is a barber shop in the vicinity. Ask him why such a pole represents a barber shop and tell him not to talk politics or the weather to you until he has answered and you will have quite a time of it. Of course you know, but in case you don't want to bother telling him just clip this item and induce him to paste it in his hat.

In olden times blood letting was believed in and the ancient barber was the man who made a specialty of it, as also some of them do today. The pole has nothing to do with hair cutting or shaving; it represents the blood letting end of the profession. The red stripes indicate the flow of blood, the white stripes the linen bandages used after the operation. If you succeed in cornering your barber on this question ask him not to talk so much until he acquires some information worth imparting."

After the Lovers.

A gang of swindlers has been arrested in Chicago that was operating to get rich quick by running a fake game in connection with a "matrimonial bureau". The scheme was to send out matrimonial literature, and after they had got a sucker corresponding with them to draw out all the facts concerning his income, personal estate, etc., they would then start to send him their "get rich quick" literature.

The concerns had a corps of stenographers whose business it was to answer the letters of the love sick ones who were hunting for a chance to assume the fetters of married life, and these stenographers testified that they had answered some 600,000 letters to men and women from all over the country.

While the concerns were located in Chicago they did no business in that city but confined their efforts to the small towns about the country. The gullible who are looking for the chance can generally find some easy method of getting rid of their money.

The following good advice is taken from the columns of the LaCrosse Republican and Leader:

"Every citizen should believe in the town he lives in, and if he doesn't think it is a little better in most respects than neighboring towns then he should move out. When away from home, do not neglect to give those with whom you come in contact to understand that you live in a live town, populated by enterprising people, and one that is advancing instead of retrograding.

"If you can truthfully speak in commendation of the ability of your professional men, the square dealing methods of your merchants, the superiority of your schools, etc., let nothing prevent you from exercising that privilege. It will not be necessary to mention the drawbacks, if there are any. Strangers seeking a location are always greatly influenced in favor of any place where the citizens are enthusiastic in its praise.

"Unless its inhabitants appreciate the excellence and virtues of each other and will collectively spread abroad their faith in the prosperity and future greatness of their own locality, no city or town can expect to attain prominence over its rivals. When rightly utilized talk can be made effective in many directions, and this is one of them."

CROWN PRINCE CALLS.

Coming Ruler of Siam Pays a Visit to President Roosevelt—Ceremonial Greetings.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 11.—His royal highness, Chulalongkorn Rajavidyalok, crown prince of Siam, accompanied by his suite, reached Washington on a special train at 8 o'clock this morning. During their stay here he will be the guest of the nation. After breakfasting in his private apartments at the Arlington hotel, the crown prince and his party, dressed in their court dress, and escorted by a squadron of the Second United States Cavalry, were driven to the temporary white house, to pay their respects to President Roosevelt. All the members of the cabinet now in the city—Secretaries Hay, Wilson and Hitchcock and Postmaster General Payne, together with Secretary Cortelyou and Col. Hiram, were present to assist in the reception. The greetings between the President and the prince were cordial on both sides and there were no formal speeches. The prince expressed his admiration for the country, the little of it he had seen, and spoke of the impressive appearance of the American cavalry. President Roosevelt responded pleasantly. He asked the prince about his proposed itinerary and expressed the hope that he would visit the military and naval academies and also spend some time examining the industries of which the country was so proud. The audience lasted not more than five minutes. The prince and his party were then driven back to the Arlington, where the prince will remain quietly this afternoon looking after his mail.

NEW WALL COLLAPSED; MEN UNDER RUINS.

Thirteen Men Were at Work on the Roof Eight Escaped by Jumping.

Jackson, Mich., Oct. 11.—The northwest wall of the new Otsego hotel, in process of construction here, collapsed this morning while thirteen men were at work on the roof. Eight of them escaped by jumping to another part of the structure. The other five went down as the roof fell. One, Henry Glinner, is still buried in the ruins, while the others have been taken out seriously, but it is thought, not fatally, injured. Their names are W. Thomas, George L. Van Allen, William Mackey and Pat O'Connor. Glinner died as a result of his injuries. The contractor for the building is Mayor Samuel Pickles, who was in the structure when the wall collapsed. It is said that the building was inspected and pronounced satisfactory by the architect last night.

Water Before Meals.

While the general opinion of those supposed to be authorities on this matter has been that the habit of drinking water at meals is a deleterious one it is now stated, according to recent investigations, that a little water, if not too cold, is beneficial, as it assists in the digestion of the food. A too copious supply of water dilutes the gastric juice, and if too cold lowers the temperature of the stomach before normal, thus impairing digestion. If, however, water is taken in limited quantities, the previous food is washed aside, thereby facilitating digestion. By this means the undigested food is held back and is more susceptible to further action of the gastric juice. During the period of rest of the stomach, the food is deposited on the walls of the stomach. This process, being very tedious, prevents the free flow of gastric juice for some time, hence gastric digestion is recommended, because it loosens and washes away this deposit of unassimilated food as it enters the stomach.—Exchange.

MORGAN HAS A PLAN.

New York Financier Has a Long Talk With Secretary Root.

OFFICIALS' CONFERENCE

President Seeking Authority to Prosecute for Alleged Violations of the Anti-Trust Statute.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 11.—Important developments in the coal strike situation may come at any moment, as this is undoubtedly a critical juncture in the controversy. J. Pierpont Morgan had a lengthy conversation with Secretary Root over the long-distance telephone and the secretary afterwards attended two conferences at the white house. The fact that the New York financier had conferred with a member of the administration and that there was subsequently a consultation between Mr. Root and the President was enough to create the impression that a critical juncture in the coal strike controversy was at hand. The impression is that Secretary Root and Mr. Morgan were discussing definite suggestions for bringing about a resumption of coal mining in Pennsylvania. This is based on the belief that Morgan, with which Mr. Morgan is identified, recognize the absolute necessity of relieving the fuel famine.

Roosevelt's Next Move.

President Roosevelt has not abandoned all hope of settling the coal strike, but he would be gratified if Senators Hiram and Quay and Gov. Odell in their conference with Mr. Morgan and the coal operators in New York would find a compromise on which the mine owners and miners could agree. The next move of the President is likely to be one like that against the Northern Securities Company for violation of the anti-trust law. Attorney General Knox is still examining the law and the evidence that has been secured with a view to bringing suit against the coal combination. The President is convinced that this coal combination is violating the antitrust law and he has insisted on the department of justice making very thorough investigations to determine whether there cannot be some legal action taken against it. Attorney General Knox and Secretary Root at first thought it more advisable to seek a compromise of the strike and the production of coal than bring suit under the Sherman law, but since the coal operators refused to consider any compromise and insisted that Mr. Morgan, the attorney general has resumed consideration of the legal phases of the case, and the evidence tending to show a conspiracy in restraint of trade and to fix prices.

Root in New York.

New York, Oct. 11.—The presence here of Secretary Root, who came over last night from Washington, gave rise to reports that he would confer with the representatives of the coal interests on behalf of the President. When Secretary Root failed to appear at any of the places which it is his custom to visit when here, it was reported that he was in conference with Mr. Morgan. As Mr. Morgan did not appear at his downtown offices today it was taken to indicate that he and the secretary of war had gotten together at some secret place of meeting. After breakfasting at the Union League Club the secretary of war disappeared and no trace of him could be obtained.

Fuel for the Poor.

Close friends who say Gov. Odell has been his headquarters for Newburgh today were inclined to think that he has formulated a plan of action in the event that the strike is not settled at an early day. This plan, however, it is believed to have any direct bearing on the settlement of the dispute between the operators and miners, but looks to a project which coal may be supplied to the suffering poor of this state.

BAER CALLED DOWN.

Has Sharp Interchange of Words with Gov. Odell of New York.

New York, Oct. 11.—There was a sharp interchange of words between Gov. Odell and President Baer at the conference in Secretary Root's office today. It was taken to indicate that he and the secretary of war had gotten together at some secret place of meeting. After breakfasting at the Union League Club the secretary of war disappeared and no trace of him could be obtained.

Gov. Odell was on his feet in an instant. While with excitement he said: "Are you to understand that he said of a conspiracy to prevent the free flow of coal at the hands of the operators?" "I did not say that," answered Mr. Baer. "I said that I believe that we will not accept of a policy of allowing the interference of politicians in this affair."

Baer crawfishes.

President Baer, evidently appreciating that he had gone too far, bowed to Gov. Odell and said: "Governor, I beg your pardon. No personal affront was intended, and we will listen to any suggestions you may have to make; but again, I repeat, that we must refuse to recognize the union, as represented by Mr. Mitchell."

your position, from a public view, is absolutely untenable. If coal operators, railroad men, and other business men can combine for mutual profit and protection, there is no reason why laboring men should not."

Demands Recognition of Union.

"What is the proposition?" said Mr. Baer, coldly. "Just this," said Gov. Odell, "I am sure that the labor organization of which Mr. Mitchell is head desires him to be fair with the general public. The operators will consent to give the men a cent a ton increase I will personally present it to the miners and I believe they will accept it. It is a fair proposition."

"Does this mean, Gov. Odell, that we are to recognize the miners' union?" Mr. Baer asked. "It certainly does," answered Gov. Odell, "and there is no reason why you should not."

The operators then departed, Baer remarking that the matter would be presented to his associates and that an early answer would be forthcoming.

Hurled Rocks at Soldiers.

Mr. Carmel, Pa., Oct. 11.—Early this morning persons on a hill close to the Sixteenth Regiment campment began hurling rocks and discharging revolvers at the officers' quarters. After a half dozen bullets fell into camp Lieut. Col. Richards and forty line and staff officers ran in the direction the firing came from. The officers shot several times ahead of them, but as darkness hid the soldiers' assailants were found.

Albert Dry's House Dynamited.

Pottsville, Pa., Oct. 11.—The house of Albert Dry, a Philadelphia Reading coal and brick policeman, was dynamited about midnight and his daughter was injured.

EXPRESS ROBBERY.

Train on the Burlington Road Held Up by Three Masked Men Near Lincoln, Neb.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 11.—The Burlington St. Louis-Pacific Coast express which leaves Lincoln for the northwest at 1:10 a. m. was held up five miles out of the city about half past 1 o'clock this morning. The train reaches Lincoln at 12:55 a. m. and leaves for the Northwest ten minutes later. It was a few minutes late this morning and was in charge of Conductor C. A. Lyman and Engineer L. A. Chapman. On the crest of a hill midway between the city and the town of Good, a band of three men armed with revolvers across the track and brought the train to a standstill. Two men sprang quickly into the cab, covering Chapman and his fireman with revolvers. They lost no time in giving their orders and were just as promptly obeyed. The express car was cut from the rest of the train and ran ahead a short distance. They found the door locked, and after commanding Mesenger to open it and getting no response, fired two or three shots into the car. The door was then opened. A heavy charge of dynamite on the safe literally tore it to pieces. Fourteen packages, said to contain $100 each, were taken, together with other valuables.

Gentlemanly Robbers.

The two men who were in the car morning had the trainmen good morning, jumped from the car and disappeared in the darkness. The passengers were not molested, nor were the trainmen asked for their belongings. While the robbery in the express car was going on a third robber walked alongside the track by the passenger coaches and fired his revolver occasionally to keep inquisitive inquiries of the brakemen who alighted from the rear coach to go ahead found a revolver pushed in his face, with a warning to go back where he belonged. He ran the four miles to the Lincoln yards and was the first to give the alarm.

The robbers were cool, talkative and apparently experts. The whole job occupied scarcely an hour. The train was run back to Lincoln, the wrecked express car taken out and at 4 o'clock it resumed its journey, the original crew going out with it. Following it was an engine carrying Chief of Police Hoagland, Detective Malone and his two bloodhounds and three police officers. At the scene of the hold-up the howlers took the scent and the pursuit of the robbers was actively begun. Every town and village marshal and every county sheriff in Southwestern Nebraska has been notified of the robbery and told to be on the watch. The fact of the robbery as given out by official reports of the Lincoln Herald, Oct. 10, says: "A reward of $1000. They have offered a reward of $1000 for the capture of the gang. The booty consisted principally of gold coin. This made the burden of the robbers exceedingly heavy and accounts for the broad trail discovered by Chief Hoagland."

COLOMBIA FILES PROTEST.

Remonstrates with the United States Minister Over Admiral Casey's Order.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 11.—The Colombian government, on complaint of Gen. Salazar, in command of its forces on the isthmus, has remonstrated with the United States minister at Bogota regarding Rear Admiral Casey's reported refusal to allow troops and munitions of war to cross the isthmus. The Colombian government said it did not see how it could suppress the rebellion if it was not allowed to move troops freely in its own territory.

The officials here are confident that Rear Admiral Casey's order has been misunderstood. They feel sure that if he stopped the transfer of Colombian troops of war materials it was only for some temporary reason.

Trouble Begins.

Trouble begins with the first backache. Backache comes in many forms—sudden twinges of pain, sharp stitches, slow, exhaustive aches. Most backache pains are kidney pains. The kidneys fail to perform the duties nature intends them to do and the warning of trouble comes through the back. Neglect the kidney warning, grave complications will surely follow.

Urinary disorders—Diabetes, Bright's Disease—are the downward steps of neglected kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills cure every kidney and bladder sickness and the cure lasts. Read this proof of it:

Mrs. Anna Guntle, residing at 701 South Main street, Crawfordsville, Ind., says: "I made a public statement in 1897 saying that Doan's Kidney Pills had cured a member of our family after he had suffered for years with a weak back and kidney troubles. He took three boxes of this remedy and was completely cured. Now three years have elapsed since I made this statement, and I am only too pleased to re-endorse it. I have also used Doan's Kidney Pills myself, obtaining the best results. I have recommended this remedy to my friends and neighbors as one which can always be depended upon."

A FREE TRIAL of this great Kidney medicine which cured Mrs. Guntle will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists. Price 50 cents per box.

THE LAW MUST PREVAIL.

Radical Action at Detroit Coal Conference is Defeated.

CANNOT SEIZE MINES.

Contention Made that Strikers are Not Only Preventing Shipments, but Destroying Commerce.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 10.—After sessions of wrangling and bitter debate, radicals battling with conservatives to the last ditch, the "coal famine" convention early this morning determined on the demands by which relief will be sought from the anthracite coal famine. The minority report advocating the immediate seizure of the coal mines was submitted by Victor L. Berger of Milwaukee and was rejected, and the majority report, compiled by a sub-committee consisting of Judge E. P. Dunne of Chicago, Mayor C. B. Sweeney of Indianapolis, Prof. H. C. Adams of Ann Arbor, W. C. P. Breckinridge of Lexington, Ky., ex-Congressman T. E. Tarsney of Detroit, Mayor S. M. Jones of Toledo, ex-Congressman N. D. Bradley of Bay City, Mich., and Charles Alexander of Providence, R. I., was adopted.

Conservatism Prevailed.

The labor or Socialistic influence was not very strong in the convention and opposition to the majority report quickly faded away after an eloquent address by Col. Bradstreet, who explained that the law must be obeyed and that a remedy must be found either under present statutes or under future laws, but not in the unlawful seizure of anthracite coal mines, which, in the opinion of the committee, could not be done by the general government under the principles of democratic government. The majority adoption of the resolutions of the conference adjourned sine die.

The resolutions offered by the majority were adopted as follows: First—We urge upon the President the necessity and expediency of instructing the attorney general to institute legal proceedings to enforce the law and to prevent the seizure of anthracite coal mines and the act of July 2, 1890.

Ask Criminal Proceedings.

Second—By instituting criminal proceedings in the proper courts against the individuals who are responsible for the seizure of anthracite coal mines, the government should exercise its right in behalf of the people, when by such exercise great public wrongs can be righted and great public suffering avoided.

Wish State to Run Mine Roads.

Sixth—That we respectfully petition the governor of Pennsylvania, unless the strike is speedily settled, to call to a special session of the Pennsylvania Legislature and recommend to the state to operate the anthracite coal mines so as to supply the demands of the American public, and pending the settlement of the strike to take immediate possession of said mines and to operate them for the benefit of the state, pursuant to statute, who shall at once take possession of said mines and operate them for the benefit of the state.

Censure the Operators.

Eighth—Though this conference is not in possession of all the facts and does not attempt to make a judicial or authoritative decision, it does express its censure as to the course pursued by the present and former operators of the anthracite mines and their refusal to submit to proper arbitration questions in dispute between said railroad companies and coal and anthracite coal mines and to express profound sympathy for the miners and their families, and as evidence of this sympathy this conference recommends to the miners and their families to resist the seizure of their mines and to all the other cities in America that steps be taken by them to raise a fund and assist in the support and maintenance of the miners and their families. Whatever may be the wrong or the right of this unfortunate controversy these miners are our fellow citizens as well as our brethren and their families are in direct necessity of aid, and we express the force of our expression of our sympathy for them in their suffering and distress.

Ninth—There are reports that efforts are now being made in the city of New York to induce these parties to this controversy to enter into some compromise or arrangement by which the miners may resume their work and the coal and anthracite coal may be secured. We express the hope that these efforts may be successful and that the strike may end, but this strike has demonstrated the necessity of a permanent solution of the coal and anthracite coal famine, and we urge that the measures recommended in these resolutions be taken to prevent the recurrence of such a catastrophe and to render the recurrence impossible.

Score Advance in Coal Price.

Tenth—We desire to express our hearty commendation of these owners, transporters or operators in Pennsylvania coal who have taken advantage of the present depressed situation to advance the price of such coal. Eleventh—That we regard the action of President Roosevelt in attempting a settlement of the coal famine by legal action as noble and commendable, and as an example of a high order of patriotism that we hope to see emulated by the public in general in the future. We urge that all citizens who are in the coal and anthracite coal famine may be benefited by all questions of difference between employers and employees may be settled by arbitration.

TAX DODGER GOES TO JAIL.

Surrenders on Contempt Charge After Voluntary Imprisonment.

Portland, Ill., Oct. 10.—Michael Harrigan went to the court house and permitted the sheriff to serve an attachment on him. He was then taken to the county court and given until Saturday to purge himself of contempt. Harrigan has been engaged in buying tax titles and for the last two months he and his sister, Maggie Harrigan, have been voluntary prisoners in his home. He refused to pay a portion of his taxes or to appear before the board of review, which, however, assessed him and his sister $50.00.

The Evolution of an Ape.

A humorous chapter might be written on the following adventures of a monkey, recounted in a paragraph entitled, "What Cannot an Ape Become?" published in the German Journal of Sport. A German sportsman from Germany, East Africa, brought with him as a pet a small monkey weighing about one pound. From Tanganyika to Genoa no change was made. From Genoa to the Swiss frontier the railway authorities described the little creature as a "bird," and charged 1½ francs for his fare. When he reached Switzerland the Gotthard railway officials were persuaded that he was not a "bird," but a "monkey," accordingly, it was charged 3½ francs, had to be taken for him. The next railway company in Switzerland, not being certain under what category of animals he should be classified, dismissed him as a "passenger's luggage," taking only a fee of about 7 pence for him. In Baden and Wurtemberg, as "hand luggage," he was charged 1 franc, and as such, not free, but from Stuttgart to his destination he was again regarded as the same species, and as a "dog," a ticket was demanded for him, value 1s. 7d.—London Telegraph.

Theodore Roosevelt on "The Presidency."

Before his nomination for the Vice-Presidency Theodore Roosevelt wrote extensively for "The Youth's Companion" an article on "The Presidency." It was published in the number for November 6, this being one of the remaining weekly issues of 1902 sent free from the time of subscription to every new subscriber who at once sends $1.75 for The Companion's 1903 volume. When this article on "The Presidency" was written no one could have foreseen or dreamed what its author would so soon be called upon to take up the duties of the great office. For this reason alone what Mr. Roosevelt has to say possesses extraordinary interest, and will be eagerly awaited by persons of all shades of political opinion.

A twenty-eight-page prospectus of the 1903 volume of The Youth's Companion and sample copies of the paper will be sent free to any address.

Shooting Season in Paris.

In the environs of Paris, especially on Sunday, during the shooting season the woods are full of sportsmen more or less amateur. Men and women go out together, the former wearing brown smocks, with belts and leather leggings, the women sometimes wear the same costume, while others wear tailored suits with short skirts, and still others who go for the purpose of proving fatal to men rather than birds, and who wander about through the forests in the most picturesque shooting dress. Some of them shoot partridge and grouse, when they are lucky, but hares, thrushes and blackbirds rather than go home without a bag.

Missouri's Livestock Product.

During 1901 the annual output of Missouri's cattle amounted to 1,084,023 head, valued at $27,365,000, compared with 1900, when only 940,263 head were shipped, for which $34,101,271 was received. So also as to hogs. In 1900 2,444,594 hogs brought $22,830,242, whereas in 1901 3,162,447 hogs brought out $22,414,238. In 1901 113,134 horses and mules were shipped, for which $7,383,240 was paid. Sheep to the number of 518,654 were shipped, and they brought $1,886,329.

He had mentioned to the widow the fact that the adventurer's hand had been branded when he was sent to Siberia, so that he was now compelled to always wear a glove, but this did not seem so singular to the lady, for the fact remained that every time she had met Roger Darrel he had gloves on; so she did not think it worth while to mention this part of the story to Carol, seeing that it confirmed the detective's ideas rather than disputed them.

Though she had only seen Roger a few times she had been wonderfully impressed by his manner and looks, and she had made up her mind that if these terrible charges against him proved true she would never trust a man again.

Poor broken-hearted Carol wandered out each day, waiting for that dread interview which was sure to come, and yet which seemed unaccountably delayed.

At the very time when these ideas were passing in review through the wearied and troubled brain of Carol Richmond, the object of her thoughts, poor Roger Darrel, was pacing his library like a caged animal, growling now and then and showing every evidence of distress and despair.

Try as he would, he found it impossible to think of Carol without allowing his mind to dwell on love, and he was nearly frantic with the continued fight he had gone through.

He had promised to be a friend to the girl he loved, and though this was easy to say when it came to attempting it he found he had before him the most difficult task of his life.

The detective gained in strength so rapidly that in a few days more he hoped to leave those who had stood so nobly by him, and start upon his trail of vengeance.

Though Roger Darrel had not yet made his appearance since the time of his separation from Carol, the widow knew he would soon come, and hence she was continually on the lookout for him. She had promised her child not to say anything to him, leaving the whole matter to her.

He came at last. The day was a lovely one, with the birds singing among the trees, and all nature looked beautiful.

Up the forest aisle came Roger, heading straight for the old mill. His face was pale and set, as though he had conquered in his battle, and yet none knew better than he how weak human nature was when the hour of temptation came.

The little lady saw him coming, and while she spoke to him pleasantly her eyes were watching his face. She saw the traces of anguish there, such as never rested upon the countenance of guilt, and when he had gone to seek Carol, after her directions, she gave utterance to her thoughts aloud:

"If that is the face of guilt, then my judgment of character is at fault. Place Roger Darrel before me and I should have declared him the most honorable of men, noble and generous. Yet how the man betrays his looks. If all is true, then a greater villain never went un-punished. My Heaven give my dear girl the strength to do what is right, no matter what the pain may be."

She had no idea of what was in store for her while thus thinking of her child, and yet a crisis in her own affairs was rapidly approaching.

Although she could not comprehend in full what the temptation would be, yet she knew Carol must suffer, and her heart went out to her poor child, upon whom Heaven had apparently frowned so early. Had it been possible, she would have liked so much to have been with Carol during this trial, but the child would not hear of it, and the little lady's heart told her also that it was best not to.

In the midst of her thoughts the lady was startled by a loud, authoritative rap upon the door and, somewhat confused, she hastily answered the summons.

When she opened the door she uttered a low, almost inaudible cry, and would have fallen but for the support her hold afforded her.

The curtain of fifteen years had been swept aside by the hand of fate, and those two who had loved and parted in the past were now brought together over the grave of their only child's hope.

Face to face stood Lawrence Richmond and the wife whom he had not once seen since that bitter parting.

CHAPTER XV.

Something within seemed to tell Carol that the meeting she had looked forward to with such aversion, and yet at the same time a strange eagerness, as though anxious to have it over with, was about to take place that day.

When she left the mill she wended her way slowly through the forest to a favorite spot of hers, and, reaching it, sat down at the base of a huge elm tree. It was the summit of quite an elevation and the view on either hand was perfectly grand, embracing, as it did, so many vistas where openings occurred through which the eye ranged far away to the river, and to a still greater elevation.

Alone with her thoughts she was accustomed to seeking this spot, and it seemed as if her very surroundings gave her comfort, yet nothing could ease the terrible pain that nagged at her heart-strings.

She held a book in her hand, but it did not occupy her attention, for her gaze was far away, and her mind evidently upon the one subject nearest her heart.

Thus she sat when the eager eyes of an approaching man fell upon her, and the spectacle brought him to a sudden pause. There was that in her attitude that brought most vividly to his mind their first meeting, when she sat by the brook, watching the gambols of the little dog, and as he gazed Roger stifled a groan of despair.

When she knew that it was Roger who was drawing near, Carol's face whitened until it resembled the driven snow, while her partly teeth seemed to penetrate the scarlet lips, and from her eyes there gleamed a strong light, such as may be seen in the orbs of a poor hunted deer, brought to bay and turning upon his hunters.

When Roger had come close to her she turned her face and looked at him. He could not help giving an exclamation. "Good Heaven! Carol, what is the matter with you? Your face is like death, and your eyes shine as with a fever. There is that upon your features that reproaches me, ay, stabs to the heart. For Heaven's sake tell me what you intend to say, for something warns me the worst has not yet come. Are we not to be friends, Carol?"

Then she laughed—such a hollow mockery of a laugh. It was no more like the ringing merriment of old than she was like the artless girl whom Roger had met that fateful day.

"You come here and ask me that—you, of all men on earth? Does not your heart reproach you, the heart to which human misery appealed in vain? You tell me I look like death. Well, my heart is dead, and you belong to the blame. I live, and yet do not live; I breathe the fresh, pure air of heaven, but there is nothing fair in my sight now. A blight rests upon all the earth. When the eye is distorted all objects upon which it falls assume the same phase. So it is with me. Need I say more, sir?"

He stood there, stricken dumb with amazement, ay, with horror. What a terrible crime he must have been guilty of in her sight to call out this from the lips that had never spoken a cross word before. It began to anger him. He had suffered as man could hardly suffer twice in a lifetime, and he counted it as naught. Finally he found his voice, and, in spite of his efforts, it trembled like a tightly strung cord.

"Carol, we stand here face to face. The past, with all its joys and sorrows, lies behind us, the future before, but we live only in the present. Since last we met you have changed wonderfully. Tell me why it is you look with aversion where once you loved."

Something in his voice aroused all the impetuosity of her nature. For the time she forgot how she had loved, did love even then, deep down in her heart, this man who stood before her with bowed head, his arms folded across his chest, and his frank eyes fastened upon her. She only remembered how he had deceived her, and that beneath this proud exterior must beat a heart blacker than sin.

"Where once I loved: You have said it, Roger Darrel. May Heaven forgive you for deceiving me as you did," she cried.

"I deceive you, Carol?" he echoed. "Those were my words, sir. I will put them stronger if you wish—basely deceived me. On the very night after you saved me from that wicked wedding, Nora Warner was dragged away by the minions of that wretch of a mad-house doctor, dragged off to misery and racking pain, and by your orders. Do not attempt to deny it, sir, for I can see the assumed look of innocent surprise on your face. You brought her to a living death, you ruined the life of the gypsy girl, Barbara Merdles, and then, with your face and sweet words, you tried to lure me to destruction."

The word burst from him like a pistol shot. As if by magic the cloud was lifted, and he saw into what a terrible mistake the young girl had fallen. His eyes were opened to the truth, but it only served to make his blood flow more rapidly with indignation and anger.

"What?"

The word burst from him like a pistol shot. As if by magic the cloud was lifted, and he saw into what a terrible mistake the young girl had fallen. His eyes were opened to the truth, but it only served to make his blood flow more rapidly with indignation and anger.

"For whom do you take me?" he asked coldly.

"You yourself declared that you were Roger Darrel, and Roger Darrel is the man who sent his wife to the asylum to be made mad. Surely the curse of heaven must follow that man forever; surely the cries of his victims must ascend on high and reach the great white throne. For myself, I forgive you freely, because I love—have loved you in the past, but in the name of those whom you have wronged in the past I could almost ask Heaven to crush you, broken-hearted as I am."

"Save your pardon for those who ask it, Miss Richmond. As for me, I do not seek it. Looking back upon my past life, I do not see an event for which I may have occasion to blush. As for these things of which you accuse me, the day will come when you will realize what a terrible mistake you have made, and you will cry out to Heaven to cover your head. I am a proud man, and from to other lips than yours would I bear such words. You have now gone too far. Some day shortly I will seek you to show you the proofs of my innocence; seek you to prove all that I ever claimed to be; seek you to show that it was the taint on my family name I feared, not because I had ever done aught that could bring disgrace upon myself or the one I loved, and having done this, I will throw your love from me like a tattered glove, for it was false—false."

She uttered a low, piteous cry and held out her hands for him to stop, but he went on mercilessly, for she had roused the lion.

"Once you told me your love was as durable as the rocks of the cliff; that through good and evil report you would trust in me until my lips sounded your death blow. How has it come out? At the first breath of suspicion, your love shudders and shrivels up, turning to loathing. It is that your priceless love, then Heaven help the next man upon whom you bestow it. I am going, Miss Richmond. What are you still doing? We shall meet once more, and when you see me as the man I am, and not in the guise of a villain who chances to betray to my family and wears my name, then perhaps you will deign to offer me your forgiveness."

With these last bitter words, he wheeled. One flash from his eyes and he had gone—gone from her in hot anger; gone to collect the proof that was to overwhelm her, while she sat there, and bowing her head, wept bitter tears, for the spell was again upon her, and she would have believed him innocent of those awful sins even should the whole world accuse him.

CHAPTER XVI.

On the Potomac! "The princely home" provided for his mad wife by Captain Grant—otherwise the insane asylum of Dr. Grim, stood upon the left bank of the river, and close to the descent by which the water could be reached.

It was not a picturesque building. There was a something dark and forbidding about its exterior that seemed to speak in thunder tones of the secrets it contained. A gloomy pile of masonry, with small iron-barred windows, and surrounded by a high wall—there it stood, a curse upon the face of nature.

In one of the little cell-like rooms was Nora Warner. They had brought her back senseless, and when she awoke to life once more it was to find herself within the confines of the hated asylum where she had already spent so many months of weary agony.

Up to this time Doctor Grim had not been very particular about inflicting any of the tortures of the place upon her, for his orders had principally been to hold her a prisoner. If she went insane, overcome by the horrors that surrounded her, well and good—in fact, so much the better—but so long as he received his pay and the Captain was satisfied, the Doctor did not waste his time in dealing severely with Nora Warner when he had his hands full at any rate.

Every now and then new patients arrived at the asylum, which was always full, and it might be noticed that just preceding each new arrival, a corpse was carried out of the back door. There was, nothing secret about this matter of burial, and the people living in the vicinity had little idea of the horrid of inquiry they were fostering in their minds.

It seems they had not given Nora Warner credit for the sagacity she possessed. She had escaped from the house and fate had assisted to throw them off their guard by sending the poor girl with whom Nora had exchanged her shawl and hat, to her death in the river.

The Doctor was enraged when he returned home, though he did not show it. Indeed, the more furious his anger as a general rule, the more smiling became his face, but there was death in that smile.

He realized that by the escape of Nora Warner his institution had been placed in very great danger, for had she gone to the proper authorities they would have adjudged her perfectly sane and then believed her story, which would have meant ruin, financially, to him. He trembled with fear and anger whenever he thought of the narrow escape he had had, and inwardly swore that it should never occur again.

Nora Warner was the first sane person to escape from the walls of his domain, and she should be the last. Before a month went by he would cause her to lose her reason, and then if she should manage to get out, her talk would be an incoherent jumble of nonsense.

From the glowing description of the mad-house doctor of the "princely home" he provided for his poor patients, one could imagine much that was pleasant, from padded cells to elegant furniture and Brussels carpet.

The cell of Nora Warner was a fair sample of those in the institution, with the exception of a few comfortable ones that were occupied by those whose relatives really cared for them, and who had not suspected what a den they were sending the poor unfortunates to.

With the exception of a small iron cot, fastened to the floor, and a chair, secured in the same way, the cell was entirely destitute of furniture. The walls were damp and cold, and from the barred window one could look down into the grounds of the asylum.

Beyond the great stone wall the prisoner could see the waters of the Potomac glistening in the afternoon sun, as she stood there one day, her white hands crossed, and a strange look upon her face. (To be continued.)

Packing a Picnic Dinner.

Whether the outing be for a day or a month, the lunch is of the most importance, and the question is, "How can it be taken the easiest?" Into a basket which must be brought back, or in boxes, which of course can be thrown away. Of course, the basket looks the better, and it is the proper thing if some one is willing to shoulder the burden, and for this purpose there are the most attractive ones imaginable for sale in the shops.

However, if it is to be a railroad lunch, the box idea is recommended. A big pasteboard one—the kind one's dresses come home in—may be filled with innumerable small boxes and jars. Tin cracker-boxes for all kinds of moist things—such as chicken, beef, or ham cut in slices—small tinning powder and spice boxes, or the little tin half-pound boxes druggists use, may be used for mayonnaise dressing, sandwich-fillings, soft cheese mixtures, sweet pickles, marmalades, and jellies; even butter is better carried in a box, to be spread with a silver knife when needed. Small pasteboard boxes will do for bread and cake and even pie. Of course, all these boxes must be lined with paraffin paper, their covers neatly tied on and labeled, so that the unpacker will not serve dessert first—Woman's Home Companion.

A Weak Defense.

Mrs. Newed—I baked some bread this morning and placed it in the window to cool and a man snatched up a loaf of it and started to run away, but a policeman caught him.

Newed—Was he taken to jail?

Mrs. Newed—No. The poor fellow said he was starving, so I gave him the bread and told the policeman to let him go.

Newed—You have been imposed upon, my dear. That man wasn't starving.

Mrs. Newed—Because a starving man would never have the strength to run away with a loaf of your bread.

"What's the matter with Jones?"

"Why?"

"He is. They have twins at his home."

The authorities at Minden, Germany, have made a bacteriological examination of school links. They have found that most of them contain bacteria, which, if animals are inoculated with them, often prove fatal.

BOY HURT IN RUNAWAY.

Ten-Year-Old Son of Peter Vosen of Reedsburg Meets with Serious Accident.

Reedsburg, Wis., Oct. 11.—[Special.]—Peter, the 10-year-old son of Peter Vosen, who resides about a mile west of this city, was seriously hurt as the result of being dragged by a runaway horse yesterday afternoon.

He was carrying water to some men in the field, some distance from the house and was riding a horse which had a harness on. The water jug, which he had fastened to the mane, frightened the animal. The boy lost his balance and fell, his foot becoming tangled in the harness. The boy was dragged for some distance before he became unangled from his perilous condition.

The riders who came to the house, and the members of the family and some of the help in the field soon found the unconscious boy who was suffering from severe bruises on the body and several scalp wounds. Medical aid was summoned, but it is feared the injuries will prove fatal.

Fred Meyer Meets Instant Death by Being Run Over by Heavy Machine.

Reedsburg, Wis., Oct. 11.—[Special.]—A most distressing accident occurred yesterday afternoon on the farm of Fred Hennings, near Loganville, which resulted in the instant death of Fred Meyer, 20 years old, son of George Meyer.

The heavy threshing engine of Shroeder's outfit was about to be moved after completing a setting of grain. The young man was in the act of removing the blocking which was in front of the drive wheel. After signalling the engineer to come ahead he stumbled and fell in front of the wheel, the weight going over his head; the engineer was told to reverse his engine, which he did, again going over his body, which was now a pulp-like mass.

ATTACKED WITH AXE.

Strikes an Elder Brother, but Weapon Glanced and Assassin is Knocked Down with a Chair.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 10.—While laboring under mental aberration, the result of the strain of perfecting an appliance for patents on an airplane which are pending in Washington, D. C., Charles Cawley, a 17-year-old boy of Homestead, Pa., early today killed his mother and one sister and fatally injured four other children. He also tried to kill his two older brothers, but was detected, overpowered and turned over to the police. The weapon used was an axe, with which he crushed and hacked his victims beyond recognition.

The Cawleys live in a neat six-room house on Second avenue, Homestead, and last night all the members retired about 10 o'clock. Mrs. Cawley and Belle occupied one bed, while the others, Josephine, Adeline, Raymond and Agnes occupied other beds and cribs in the same room, which is on the second floor. Charles, the murderer, his brother James, aged 20, and Harry, aged 14, occupied the front room, second floor, adjoining their mother's room.

Some time about 3 o'clock this morning Charles quietly arose and, dressing himself, but not putting on his shoes, crept down to the cellar and secured an axe. Coming upstairs he went into his mother's sleeping room, where the victims were all sleeping. After turning up the light the maniac approached his mother's bedside, swung the axe high in the air and brought it down with such force that the skull was crushed. The mother evidently never knew what struck her, but the crazed son, thinking that his first blow did not do its work, pounded the dead mother's head almost to a pulp. The dull sound of the axe on her mother's head did not arouse her. Charles hurried to her side of the bed and struck her with the axe. It is thought that the first blow slipped and awoke the girl, but only for a second. She did not have time to scream, for the next blow killed her.

The head then turned to the smaller child, and struck each one over the head with the bloody weapon. Believing that he had dispatched them all, he started for his brothers' room, but James, the eldest, had been awakened by the groans in his mother's room, and as Charles entered he seized a heavy rocking chair and after a fierce struggle overpowered him and turned him over to the police. On the way to the station he fought furiously, but after being placed in a cell he calmed down and did not seem to realize what he had done.

When physicians reached the house Mrs. Cawley and Belle were dead. The others were still living, but the doctors announced that they could not live through the day.
